Unemployment Is Cited As Cause For Crime In Nation

WICKERSHAM COMMISSION IN REPORT

Thirteenth Result of Investigation is Filed With President Hoover Today
NO REMEDY OFFERED

Prohibitory Laws Also Are Mentioned As Stimuli For Depression State

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(UP)—Unemployment and prohibitory laws were cited repeatedly as causes of crime in the latest Wickersham commission report to President Hoover.

But the commission found in this thirteenth of its reports that its task was too great. A majority decided the commission could not specifically determine the causes of crime. Neither could the commissioners prescribe remedies society might profitably administer to cure its crime illness.

Two bulky volumes contain the commission's report—about 250,000 words. All but a few paragraphs were written by six sociological experts who investigated for the commission. Repeatedly, these investigators referred to "prohibitory laws" in their search for crime causes. Prohibition of alcoholic beverages was not mentioned except incidentally.

The investigators sifted unemployment and business depression for crime stimuli. In the paragraphs contributed to the report by the commission majority, there was no reference to either prohibitory laws or unemployment. These paragraphs simply expressed the hopelessness of discovering crime causes. Nine members signed the majority report. Judge William S. Kenyon did not sign and Henry W. Anderson wrote a dissenting opinion.

Prohibitory Laws

Anderson referred to prohibitory laws which "impose undue and irritating restraints upon normal social and economic activities" or "produce discomfort, irritation and unrest which find natural expression."

PAUL WHITEMAN TO WED ON TUESDAY

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 17.—(UP)—A romance that prospered on roses will lead to the marriage in Denver tomorrow of Paul Whiteman, internationally known orchestra leader, and Margaret Livingston, popular screen actress, according to friends of the couple here.

Whiteman and Miss Livingston left Chicago today bound for the home of Whiteman's parents in Denver. Miss Livingston's friends said. At the same time her mother and sister left here for the Colorado city.

Whiteman first met Miss Livingston when he came to Hollywood to fill a motion picture engagement and he was seen almost constantly with her while he was here.

Then Whiteman went back east, but he continued his suit for her hand, and, according to Miss Livingston's relatives, he kept her home here filled constantly with roses.

COUNTY BOARD MAKES SLASH IN TAX RATE

$195,000 Lopped Off Sums Requested for Schools; Road Fund Lowered

Here's good news for the taxpayers. Through cuts in amounts requested for Orange county schools, a total of $195,000 has been slashed from the amount to be raised for 1931-1932. This, with a five cent cut in the rate necessary for the general road fund and road districts two, three, four and five, would cut the outside tax rate to $1.34 and the inside rate to $1.54.

The previous rates required to raise the necessary amounts were $2.12 outside cities and $1.67 inside.

The economy program put into effect by the schools would push the rates for education back to the figures where they were last year, reducing the county school rate from .44, which would have been necessary under the first budget request, to .38, and reducing the county high school rate from .31 to .25.

The five cent cut in the road rate has been made by the board of supervisors by a slash in the tentative budget, which will make it possible to retain last year's .40 cent general road rate.

MASS MEETING TO CONSIDER RECALL

REDWOOD CITY, Aug. 17.—(UP)—A mass meeting here tonight will consider the proposed recall of Judge George H. Buck.

The meeting was called by 26 residents forming the San Mateo county citizens' recall committee, which has investigated charges growing out of Judge Buck's order that the jury in the flood estate trial should return a verdict against Mrs. Constance May Gavin, who sought a share as a daughter of the late James Flood.

Petitions for the recall are expected to be put into circulation immediately.

A mass meeting of San Francisco women to protest the court's action will be held tomorrow afternoon.

TAX COLLECTIONS SHOW BIG DECLINE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(UP)—The story of the government's financial difficulties was told today in the precise columns of a final treasury statement on tax collections for the fiscal year that ended June 30.

Total tax collections were $611,916,978 less than in the previous year, $2,428,228,754 against $3,040,145,782. The federal deficit was $993,000,000.

Most of the decrease was in income taxes, where the effect of the depression was marked. Income tax collections totaled $1,860,040,497, a loss of $550,218,732 from the 1930 total of $2,410,259,229.

The revenue from playing cards was the only kind of federal tax that increased. The drop in tobacco taxes was slight; the totals being $44,276,502, compared with $450,330,060.

Special Quilts Made For Col. Lindbergh

NEMURO, Japan, Aug. 17.—(UP)—Owners of the Nibiki Inn have made special arrangements to make sure that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's feet do not get cold while he sleeps here during his stop enroute with his wife from America to Tokio.

The managers of the Japanese inn, where the Lindberghs are expected to stay at least one night, have seen many pictures of the famous flier and know he is very tall.

They were afraid that the regular length quilts furnished for native guests whose average height is well under six feet, would not be long enough.

"The quilts won't reach and Mr. Lindy's feet they will get cold," said the managers, so they had some quilts made especially for the occasion.

Famous Fliers Have Only Two More Stops Before They Reach Tokio

PETROPOLSK, Siberia, Aug. 17.—(UP)—Hospitality of this little fishing settlement on Kamchatka peninsula and the need of rest held Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh here today after their flight from Karaginski and Alaska enroute to Tokio.

Nemuro and other sections of Japan were stirred today when a report was published that the Lindberghs had taken off for Japan. The report later, however, was denied and definite word was radioed that the flight would not be made before Tuesday.

They planned probably to take off early Tuesday for Nemuro, last stop before reaching Tokio, where they are due Wednesday.

After inspecting their plans with the typical Lindbergh attention to details and accepting the welcomes of soviet officials, the fliers rested and wandered about the little settlement, showing interest in the fishing craft which carry the men of the village into the northern ice-chattered waters.

From here the Russian, Japanese and Mongol residents wander into Siberia and around the coast, trading with the Eskimos and fishing. To this settlement come also the men from the gold mines in the back country and from the timber lands.

After having planned an early departure, Colonel Lindbergh announced he would remain another 24 hours, in order that they might have a full day of rest. They arrived Saturday from Karaginski, 1500 miles from Nome, their last major stop.

LEGION IS ATTACKED BY CARNEGIE GROUP

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(UP)—The American Legion was assailed as a subsidy seeking group of lobbyists, and exemption of college football from taxation was attacked today by the Carnegie Foundation.

Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, retiring president, in the annual report of the Foundation, published today, said:

"The claim that the country owes a subsidy to every citizen who has served 90 or 90 days in its military service is an impudent and unwarranted claim. To admit it would strike at the very roots of patriotism itself. The moment a citizen calls on the government for a subsidy, whether in the form of a bonus or old-age pension, for a service that has neither affected unfavorably his health nor his ability to earn a living, he abandons his position as a patriot."

Accidents Over Week End Scarce

Death of William Gleason, Mechanic, Only Fatality Reported

FATALLY BURNED in a gasoline explosion on a new yacht, anchored in Newport Bay, at midnight Saturday, William E. Gleason, 32, Santa Ana mechanic, employed at the Grand Central garage, died at the Santa Ana Valley hospital at 5:15 p. m. yesterday.

His death was the only fatality in Orange county over the week end, there being no fatal automobile accidents reported and few car crashes of any kind, according to state police.

Gleason was working alone on the new yacht, owned by Charles Cramer and George McConnell, of Santa Ana. The ship was to have been taken out on its maiden trip yesterday and had not been named. There were still a few mechanical things to be done before it was completed and Gleason was working late in order to put the ship in condition.

Gas Explodes

He carried a lantern and it is believed that gasoline fumes from the ship's bilge came in contact with the lantern's flame and caused the explosion. Gleason was blown out onto the deck of the ship, where D. C. Corey, on his boat, the Betty C., saw him. Rushing across to the burning boat, Corey threw Gleason into the bay to extinguish the flames which had enveloped his clothing and then with the aid of A. N. Ford, of Balboa, who was rowing nearby in a skiff at the time, aided in taking Gleason ashore and on his way to the hospital.

By this time, flames had enveloped a section of the new yacht which was badly damaged by fire. Two companies from the Newport Beach fire department extinguished the flames.

The body of Gleason was removed to the Harrell and Brown funeral parlors here where Coroner Charles D. Brown has called.

FOUR BANKS AND 34 BRANCHES CLOSED

TOLEDO, Ohio, Aug. 17.—(UP)—Four major Toledo banks and their 34 branches, with combined resources of more than $100,000,000, and 150,000 accounts, were closed today by order of the state banking department.

The institutions were the Ohio Savings Bank & Trust company, the Commerce Guardian Trust & Savings bank, the Commercial Savings Bank & Trust company and the American bank. Other banks remained open and announced they were prepared to stand heavy withdrawals.

The four closures were precipitated by the closing several weeks ago of the Security Home Trust company. It was said.

As notices were posted on the windows of the institutions, every available policeman in the city was ordered on duty, but there was only one instance of disorder. An irate citizen tossed a bottle through the window of a branch bank.

CATALINA ISLAND, Aug. 17.—(UP)—In the fourth disaster of its kind to have occurred here in the last 10 weeks, the $30,000 cruiser Kenbar burned to the water's edge yesterday while at anchor in Fisherman's cove.

Eugene Fernholtz, head of a machinery company in Los Angeles, narrowly escaped injury. He was lying on the sun deck in a pair of shorts when an explosion below decks, presumably a gasoline stove in the galley, showered the deck with flames.

Fernholtz dived overboard and was picked up by a passing launch.

JACK DEMPSEY SUES ESTELLE FOR DIVORCE

Former Champ of Heavyweights Charges Cruelty in Reno Court

RENO, Nev., Aug. 17.—(UP)—Jack Dempsey filed suit for divorce today, charging his wife, Estelle Taylor Dempsey, with extreme cruelty.

No specific allegations of cruelty were enumerated.

The action was filed in the name of William Harrison Dempsey by Robert E. Burns, attorney for the former heavyweight champion, after Burns had spent more than an hour in the county clerk's office, the complaint in hand, awaiting word from Los Angeles as to Mrs. Dempsey's contemplated divorce action there.

The case was not placed on the court calendar and time of its hearing is indefinite.

The case will not be set for court hearing until Mrs. Dempsey's answer is received. Should there be no answer to the complaint, the divorce could be granted by default, but this is not considered likely, in view of the large property interests involved.

Dempsey, with a series of exhibition matches involving $500,000 arranged throughout several states, is most anxious to have the case set as soon as possible, his attorney said.

His first exhibition will take place in Reno Wednesday night when he meets Jack Beasley and Tony Fuenta in the ring. Shortly thereafter he is scheduled to tour the northwest.

Filing of the complaint came after weeks of fruitless negotiation with attorneys for his wife on a property settlement.

Miss Taylor was expected to counter the lead of Dempsey with recourse to the Los Angeles divorce courts.

She was quoted as saying that if Dempsey filed his suit, she would immediately instruct Joseph Scott, her attorney, to bring suit in Los Angeles, "where the battle should be fought."

Under a new ruling of the divorce courts today, it was anticipated that the public would be denied hearing the evidence in the Dempsey suit.

Both courts were closed to spectators and sightseers under a new agreement of Judges Moran and Currier. The press was permitted to attend the hearings, however.

WILL ROGERS SAYS:

BEVERLY HILLS, Aug. 17. [To the Editor of The Register:] Farm Board destroying every third row of cotton is the nub of a great idea. What could give more relief than extinguishing every third Senator, every third Representative, every third committee, every third stock broker, every third law. Make a third of the vice-presidents of concerns go back to work. Turn the cows back into every third golf course. Convince every third gangster arrested. One-third of all millionaires that issues optimistic reports from aboard yachts. Too many banks. Bump off a third. Stop up every third oil well and every third political speaker. Destroy one-half the newspaper columnists and last, but the main thing, the matter with the whole world is there is too many people. Shoot every third one. This whole plan is inexpensive and a surefire scheme back to prosperity.

Senator Who Was Refused Seat in Senate Makes Charges in Letter

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—(UP)—Frank L. Smith charged today in an open letter that Julius Rosenwald, the philanthropist, offered him the equivalent of $650,000 in 1928 to withdraw from the senatorial race in Illinois.

The letter was addressed to Carroll Woodly, University of Chicago professor, who recently published a book condemning Smith's successful 1926 campaign which resulted in the senate later refusing him his seat. Smith suggested the letter be incorporated as an additional chapter of the book.

Although copies of the letter were widely distributed, members of Rosenwald's family said today the philanthropist had not been informed of the charges made against him.

Rosenwald has been seriously ill.

Defense Will Rest Case as Soon as State Finishes Examination of Clark

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 17.—(UP)—David H. Clark, former deputy district attorney, really was in league with the underworld instead of fighting against it was made by the prosecution today at Clark's trial on the charge that he murdered Herbert Spencer, co-editor of a political magazine.

The state, questioning Clark on cross-examination, tried unsuccessfully to force him to admit that shortly before he killed Spencer and Charles Crawford, politician, he made an effort to get the Critic of Critics, Spencer's magazine, to drop a campaign against Guy McAfee, reputed underworld king and one of the supporters of Clark's candidacy for municipal judge.

"Didn't you go to Mike Schindler (Spencer's associate on the Critic of Critics) and ask if it was not possible to fix the 'beef' between Spencer and McAfee?" Special Prosecutor Joseph Ford asked.

"I did not," Clark answered.

"Didn't Schindler say to you: 'I don't know about the 'beef.' I

LINER TRAVEL TO EUROPE IS CHEAP

PARIS, Aug. 17.—(UP)—The cheapest liner travel to Europe in history became operative today. A loss of 2000 first class passengers a week, the suspension of immigration to the United States and Canada, and drop in freight on the smaller ships of the big lines led the 18 principal North Atlantic steamship companies to confer in Paris. They decided on cuts at both ends of the travel scale.

The meeting, which terminated July 29, decided that as from August 17 most of first class transportation be reduced from 10 to 30 per cent. Cheaper class of travel, presumably including tourist-third, will be subject to reductions varying around 13 per cent.

HOOVER DAM STRIKE ENDS; MEN AT WORK

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Aug. 17.—(UP)—Practically all workers on the huge Hoover dam project were back at work today, as 150 men who struck for higher wages 10 days ago had voted to end their differences with the Six Companies, Inc.

The strike was ended in anticipation of improvement of working conditions in the tunnel shafts now under construction. Some 1,500 men were thrown out of work for a week when the Six Companies answered the strikers demands for higher wages by closing down the entire project, which was ordered resumed Friday by Walker R. Young, government engineer in charge of the work.

ELEVEN INJURED BY CRASH OF GLIDER

WYALUSING, Pa., Aug. 17.—(UP)—Captain Fred Pippig, former German ace, was held on open charges today after his glider crashed into a crowd while making an exhibition flight and injured 11 persons.

Pippig, who said his home was in Paterson, was placed in the county jail at Tonawanda. He received slight leg injuries. Three persons were seriously injured.

Pippig had just taken off a hill when his craft crashed. It is believed the glider was caught in a tricky air current.

UNEMPLOYMENT IS CITED AS CRIME CAUSE

sion in disrespect for government for government and in disregard for or resistance to law."

Morris Placow, a Sheldon Fellow at Harvard university, found in his expert opinion that "the demoralization of more than one police department and to some extent other law-enforcing agencies is due to the attempt to enforce laws not completely sanctioned by community opinion."

He also mentioned unemployment: "Times of crisis are times of unemployment and this means economic distress for thousands of workers. Whatever be the mechanism that brings about an increase of criminality in times of crisis, an increase is observed by all the writers who have studied the social consequences of business cycles."

He held that the corrupt link between protected criminals and crooked police was a contributing factor in crime.

Placow's report contained the only direct reference to prohibition, as follows:

"The activities of the bootlegging gangs, termed the greatest menace in organized crime by the Illinois crime survey, with their consequent toll of homicide, murder, and violence, would not be possible without the demand for intoxicating liquors and the tremendous profits to be made in supplying it."

"It cannot be a source of surprise," Anderson continued, "that these conditions produce among even the most social and law-abiding elements of the people an attitude of bewilderment as to law, and hopelessness as to government; among the less law-abiding an attitude of antagonism to law and contempt for government; and a reckless disregard to social and legal restraints among youths who are least controlled by habit or influenced by social routine."

Anderson severely criticized the American system of development which brought exploitation of land resources to a point now near exhaustion, caused the widest spread between rich and poor in the western world, developed slums in the city and ignorance in the underprivileged country districts, and "made of man a cog in a relentless machine."

"The American people have created," he said, "the largest body of laws and the most complex system of government now in existence as restraints and social conduct, but every stage in their development has been characterized by a large and ever increasing degree of lawlessness and crime.

"They have engaged in at least one war in every generation. 'No candid investigation can ignore those facts, or the conclusions which they naturally suggest.'"

Recommendations
Anderson recommended greater facilities for improving home and neighborhood environment; removal of slums and underprivileged areas — "a courageous re-examination of the principles and structures of our social, political, legal and economic systems."

The shrill voices of 5000 school children will be raised in cries of "Banzai! Banzai!" (Hurrah! Hurrah!) to mingle with the roar of the black and yellow monoplane which is bearing the flying couple from Washington, D. C., to Tokyo.

It will be a colorful, thrilling welcome, according to plans of Japanese officials.

The entire population of the city will be out to welcome the visitors when they arrive from Petropavlovsk.

Nemuro officials will go out in a launch to welcome the couple to Japan and the monoplane will be towed to the shore. Representatives of the American embassy will join in the welcome. The visitors will be taken under an especially built "welcome arch." The city will be gaily decorated.

A Japanese band, playing American anthems, will be in the procession. Dignitaries will take the two to Nishiki, where a reception will be held.

an inquest for 10:30 a. m. tomorrow.

Gleason is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ruth Gleason, his mother, Mrs. Jane Gleason and two sisters, Jane Gleason of Santa Ana and Mrs. B. H. Hawkins, of Santa Barbara.

Six injured

Six persons were reported injured at 2 p. m. Sunday when an automobile driven by Earl Caylor, 55, of Rose drive, Whittier, collided with a car driven by Neva A. Kelly of 4175 Chestnut street, Riverside, one mile south of Tustin on the state highway.

Mrs. Kelly, 32, suffered severe cuts and bruises and Paul Smith, 25, of 2101-2 South College street, Whittier, and Dorothy McLaughlin, also of Whittier, were cut and bruised.

In the Caylor machine, Caylor, Eddie Graham of 1614 Rincon avenue, and Pearl Smith, all of Whittier, were reported cut and bruised. All were taken to the Orange county hospital and to the Santa Ana Valley hospital, where their injuries were given attention, and all were able to return to their homes with the exception of Mrs. Kelly, who is still a patient today in the county hospital.

Mrs. G. S. Lewtwitches, 45, of 443 East Main street, Riverside, was cut and bruised in an automobile accident in Santa Ana canyon, four miles from Olive, at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning. The car in which she was riding with her husband was reported to have collided with a car driven by A. W. Lieberman, 43, of 126 North La Jolla street, Los Angeles.

Mrs. Otille Jiles of 335 Beverly place, Santa Ana, was knocked down by a sheriff's car operated by Merle Dean, deputy sheriff, at 7:30 p. m. yesterday at Fourth and Sycamore streets, according to a report filed by Dean. She refused medical attention and reported she was more frightened than hurt, the officer reported.

Arrest of two alleged gasoline thieves and a confession from one of them were reported today by F. C. Swayze and S. J. Duhart, of the Orange county fruit patrol. The men arrested are William Rout, 35, and Carl Holt, 24, both of 456 Santa Fe way, Orange. Swayze and Duhart said they found the pair near a county tractor parked on Ocean avenue east of the Santa Ana river.

The officers of the fruit patrol, which has been active in bringing in asserted fruit and gasoline thieves, said they drove past a small car on the side of the road and that the two men appeared to be working on the engine. They drove on past the tractor and then returned, noticing that the tractor had been tampered with. They accosted Rout and Holt and found that in the back of their car was an open car with about four gallons of gas in it. At first Holt asserted they had bought it but when told of the missing gas in the tractor, confessed, Duhart said.

Rout and Holt were to be taken before Justice Kenneth Morrison today for arraignment on petty theft charges.

don't think it can be fixed?" Ford asked.

"He did not," came the answer. Defense attorneys said their case would be closed as soon as Ford finished his cross-examination. The state, however, plans to call a number of rebuttal witnesses. It is possible that Clark's fate will rest with the jury by Wednesday night.

Among the state's rebuttal witnesses will be Frederick (Mike) Schindler, partner of Spencer in the publication of the "Critic of Critics."

Schindler is expected to testify that he spent several hours with Spencer the day he was slain, and that Spencer was unarmed. City Health Officer George Parrish also will be called in rebuttal to the testimony of Mrs. Edith Mathes, policewoman, who said that he carried a gun at the time.

Mrs. Frances Spencer and Mrs. Charles Crawford, widows of the slain men, also will be called to repeat their testimony that their husbands were unarmed.

Special Prosecutor Joseph Ford grilled the young attorney mercilessly to try to bring out some motive but Clark stuck to his original story of the shootings.

Among other things, Ford intimated that Clark might have killed the two men because they planned to beat him at the June elections when he was a candidate for municipal judge.

"When you went into Crawford's office that afternoon of May 20, didn't he tell you that you couldn't be elected judge?" Ford asked.

"No, sir, he didn't," Clark answered.

"Didn't Crawford tell you that he had just had a conference with Guy McAfee (reputed underworld leader)?"

"He said nothing about it."

"Well, didn't Crawford say to you: 'You haven't got a chance to be elected. I've made up with McAfee and you can't expect any financial help from me?'"

"No, he did not," Clark answered calmly.

Estelle to Contest Dempsey Divorce

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 17.—(UP)—Estelle Taylor, screen actress, will contest the divorce suit Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, brought against her in Reno today and meantime she, herself, will bring divorce action against him in the Los Angeles courts, she said here today.

"You can say for me right now that Jack's filing of the action means that there is going to be a real fight," Miss Taylor said. "I'll contest the Reno action, either by filing a cross-complaint or by moving to have it made invalid if he wins in Reno. I'm certain I'll file suit in Los Angeles for a divorce."

Miss Taylor said she believed her Los Angeles divorce suit would be filed tomorrow or Wednesday.

the last four months and his son, Lessing, announced that "because of his condition, members of the family are unwilling at this time to have brought to his attention the controversy between Professor Wooddy and Mr. Smith."

The Dwight real estate man whom the United States senators barred from sitting among them because they said he had accepted more than $200,000 in campaign contributions from Samuel Insull, midwest utilities magnate, charged in his letter that Rosenwald wanted him to withdraw from the race so that Hugh S. Magill, independent Republican, could have a clear field.

He said that on October 3, 1926 after he had been nominated by the Republican party and stories had been published concerning the Insull contributions, Rosenwald made him the offer in the Congress hotel in Chicago.

Smith quoted Rosenwald as saying to him on that occasion:

"After the meeting the other day I went to an inner room to take a siesta upon orders from my doctor. While lying there thinking, I had a brainstorm. I thought to myself, if I will give $500,000 to have Magill elected, why not give Frank Smith $500,000 and have him withdraw."

"So I acted."

"No one knows what I am about to say to you except my wife, whose consent I had to get before I could make the offer, and no one else will know from me."

"If you will withdraw from the senatorial race, I am here to offer you 10,000 shares of Sears-Roebuck stock the moment you sign your withdrawal notice. In a few months that stock will be worth three-quarters of a million dollars." (Smith states at another point that the stock actually was worth $2,000,000 two years later.)

Swing also was questioned about rumors that he is considering establishing his residence in the congressional district embracing Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties and possibly seeking election to congress from this region. He said he had not given the matter serious consideration so far, but that he certainly would not make this move if in so doing he placed himself in the position of opposing for election any of his friends in this district who have supported him in the past.

Alleged Driver Of Death Car Is Booked At Jail

Oswald Lee Ivey, 22-year-old Los Angeles youth, alleged driver of the car which struck and killed Ollie H. Lehman, 45, flagman, near Doherty Park early Friday morning, has been brought to the Orange county jail and is booked for manslaughter.

In spite of this, no complaint against the youth has yet been filed by the district attorney's office, but Preston Turner, deputy district attorney, stated today that one of two charges would be filed, probably this afternoon — manslaughter or driving a car while under the influence of liquor.

A coroner's jury in the Lehman case returned an open verdict in the death of the flagman. The inquest was held Saturday morning, at San Clemente.

A WORD OF COMFORT

There is a suggestion for your life in the story of the woman who cut on her windowpane the words "This is the day," so that she saw it when she raised the shades every morning.
Yesterday is gone; tomorrow will be the same of today; do not waste it.
You may not be able to do all that you wish you could today, but you can try and do your best.
Your dear one walks beside you and yearns to have you rise in your strength and go manfully on. For the sake of that one, do not put off till tomorrow the endeavor to stand up to your tasks. Begin now; this is the day.

LAY POST OFFICE CORNERSTONE SWING WARNS ON GANG RULE

Congressman Declares Dry Rot of Body Politic Menaces America

America is facing the possibility of rule by gangsters on one hand or by a Mussolini on the other because there is dry rot in the body politic of American citizenship and the populace is too busy with its own personal affairs to take a constructive interest in its government.

This was the situation outlined by Congressman Phil D. Swing on Saturday afternoon in the course of his address at the cornerstone laying of the new federal building.

Swing made a strong plea for law observance and he declared that each citizen should be a militant, aggressive force for law observance and that he should exert this force so that his friends and neighbors would follow his lead.

Need Observance
"We hear a lot about law enforcement," said Swing, "but law observance is the least of the means to secure law and order. There are not enough officers in all the cities or in the army and navy to make the people obey the laws if they don't want to do it. What we need is law observance, and if we don't have it, we can't blame the officers only. The people themselves are to blame."

Swing compared a citizen's relation to government with the importance of an individual brick in the postoffice building and pointed out how a few defective bricks would weaken the superstructure. Just so, he said, do poor citizens weaken government. It is not enough to vote, he said. Votes must be cast intelligently, with a singleness of purpose.

"We ought even to vote against a friend if we feel he is not qualified for office."

England is training the Prince of Wales to rule. Here the people are the rulers and they will have

Impressive Masonic Rites Marks Ceremony of Dedication

With many prominent leaders of Santa Ana and Orange county present to witness or participate in the event, the cornerstone of the new federal building here was put in place Saturday afternoon, the impressive Masonic ceremony being used. Music to add to the occasion was furnished by D. C. Clanton and members of the municipal band.

The main address was given by Congressman Phil D. Swing, who spoke on law observance and the need for a gigantic federal construction program to aid unemployment.

A prayer given by the Rev. George Warner, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church and a member of the Masonic group taking part in the rites, opened the program.

Swing is lauded
Postmaster T. E. Stephenson then told briefly how the preliminary work had been done and how success finally met the efforts to secure a new post office here. Stephenson declared that the credit should go to Congressman Swing and that his efforts had made it possible to get started two years earlier than might have been the case without his untiring assistance.

Stephenson also called attention to the work of C. N. Franklin, construction engineer for the federal government; E. J. Chute, contractor; Earl Estes, his construction superintendent; and Frank Barr assistant. He pointed out that the interest, ability and care of these men had made possible the early completion and excellent construction of the building.

James B. Gist officiated in the place of Worshipful Grand Master John Stewart Ross, who had been called north and was unable to be present. Under Gist's leadership the dignity of the Masonic ceremony was apparent. He was assisted by E. B. Smith, treasurer; George Raymer, secretary; Henry MacMasters, senior warden, and L. L. Whittell, junior warden.

City Complimented
In his brief address Gist praised the steady growth of Santa Ana and complimented the energy and foresight of the men who have made the city's development possible. In speaking of the Masonic ceremony he recalled that on September 13, 1793, George Washington, assuming for the time his position of Masonic leadership, had officiated at the laying of the cornerstones of the nation's capitol building at Washington and that since that time it had been traditional for Masons to officiate at these functions. He pointed out that the symbol of the order made this custom appropriate and showed that now the order is laboring to build spiritual edifices of strength and beauty.

A special arrangement of "The Church in the Wildwood," by Clanton and members of the band preceded the notification of the Masons of the work to be done in laying the cornerstone. Following the notification the musicians played "O Where Has My Highland Lassie Gone?"

Ceremony Completed
The casket containing records and symbols of the city's history and present development then was brought forth and the ceremony ended with it being deposited in the cornerstone, after which Gist as presiding official was informed that the work had been done and that the stone was correctly placed.

John M. Sheetz, mason, was in charge of the work of placing the large stone in place. He was assisted by Arthur Prouse, apprentice.

The band played "My Country 'Tis of Thee" as a final number, after which Swing was introduced by Stephenson.

In introducing his talk on law observance Swing declared that credit for realization of the dream of a new federal building should go to Stephenson, who he said had supplied him with the facts and figures making it possible for him to assure an early start on the work.

"If I have done anything worth while it is to assist in giving you a good postmaster who understands his work and considers every patron a neighbor and friend," Swing said. "He has imbued the post office employees with the same spirit."

PLAN TO OPEN CAMP RO KILL FOR ALL BOYS

Opening of Camp RoKill, the Orange county boy scout camp in the San Bernardino mountains, on August 24 for an additional two weeks period will depend on the number of registrations that come in to the scout headquarters on North Sycamore street the balance of this week. It was announced today by Harrison E. White, scout executive.

The camp will be open to all boys in the county whether they are scouts or not. The cost will be the same as for the regular camping sessions held previously this summer and are moderate. It was announced. Reservations should be made at headquarters as soon as possible either by person or by phone. A boy may go for one week or may stay the full two weeks, as he chooses. The camp will be under the same adult leadership and supervision as the other sessions.

Scout Executive White returned from camp today after spending the week end inspecting conditions at the camp. The water distributing system was almost completely destroyed by the heavy rains that have been prevalent in the mountains recently, he announced, and the week end was spent in repairing the system and making other arrangements for the additional two weeks of camp.

This is the first time in the history of Orange county scouting that the camp has been thrown open to all boys in the county who are not scouts and many of them are expected to take advantage of the opportunity for two weeks in the open studying scout craft.

The flyers will race to Cleveland, Ohio.

The 13 planes began landing on the local field about noon yesterday, and some of the first to land were taking off as the later planes glided onto the field.

An announcement made today revealed that Mrs. Floyd Barnes, of Los Angeles was the winner of the derby, beating her closest competitor with a scant two minutes flying time.

Many of those who gathered at the airport journeyed to Santa Monica after the local event to watch the air circus staged by the group of women pilots which included parachute jumping, balloon busting, dead stick landing and other thrilling air stunts.

The women flyers were served with Orange county oranges by the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce upon their arrival. All of them expressed their pleasure with the reception accorded them

He has been with the Standard Oil company since 1922, when he graduated from Stanford university. He spent two years in service station work and then in 1923 was transferred to the main office at San Francisco. Shortly afterward he was made division head of organization. In 1925 he was transferred to sales work and after having served at Inglewood, Burlingame and Los Angeles, was made assistant manager at Santa Ana. He was put in charge at Orange last year.

Born at Watertown, S. D., 32 years ago, Carpenter was educated at Shattuck Military school, graduating in 1918. He entered the United States Naval Academy the same year but after spending a long period in a hospital at St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, was ordered to a mild climate to recuperate. He resigned from the navy in 1919 and came to California, where he entered Stanford University, graduating in 1922.

FLUSH FIELDS IN TEXAS ARE CLOSED DOWN

AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 17.—(UP)—A Ross Sterling, governor of Texas, today proclaimed martial law in the great East Texas flush oil field.

He ordered every well, both oil and gas, within the boundaries of Upshur, Rusk, Gregg and Smith counties shut down, and directed state militia, sent into the area during the night, to enforce his order.

More than 1600 wells are affected by the order. Last week these wells, in the face of a plea for a voluntary shutdown, produced 738,000 barrels of oil daily, to set an all-time record. Only one field in the world, the Kettelman Halls field in California, possesses a greater potential production.

Asserting that he was invoking martial law to prevent waste and to put down a state of insurrection, tumult, riot and breach of peace in the fields, Governor Sterling joined forces with Governor Murray of Oklahoma in a battle against prevailing low crude prices. The reaction to the move was generally expected to be a drastic upward revision of prices, probably to $1 a barrel, the price demanded by Governor Murray when he proclaimed martial law a few days ago in every flush field in Oklahoma, closing the wells by force.

The action of the Texas governor was not unexpected. Saturday he began the mustering of state troops, and yesterday he ordered them into the fields. Producers had repeatedly petitioned him to place a clamp upon the wells.

The trial of C. W. Meadows, 63, of Orange, charged with an offense against a young girl, opened today before Superior Judge G. K. Scovel. Meadows waived his right to a jury trial.

She also told Defense Counsel F. C. Drumm, who appeared with J. B. Tucker, that her father had called Meadows to their home and that her mother had asked him for $5000, saying that the damage caused was worth that amount, and that if he paid, there would be no court action. She admitted Meadows replied that he wouldn't have his leg pulled that way by anyone.

"WILL AMERICA TURN TO BOLSHEVISM TO SETTLE ITS FINANCIAL DIFFICULTIES"

JOHN E. FORD
Prominent Bible Lecturer of Seattle

Why are millions suffering in most intense poverty while the world is glutted with every commodity? Our greatest economists and statesmen have predicted a soon return to good times, while conditions are growing worse, possibly facing a catastrophe this coming winter. Shall we soon return to good times or shall things continue to grow worse until we will face the destruction of civilization? Of hopes and guesses you have had enough. What does the Bible say about it? A MARVELOUS PROPHECY OF THE EXACT CONDITIONS THROUGH WHICH WE ARE PASSING, WITH THE OUTCOME GIVEN.

CONGRESSMAN SWING WARNS ON GANG RULE

no better government than they demand and support, he asserted. After pointing out citizens' obligations to government, he showed the government's obligations to the people, for which the government really exists.

Dole Un-American
Swing believes the dolo is un-American, but he declared that in the present crisis, when the nation is full of food and the hungry millions cannot buy it, there is a responsibility on the federal government to do what is too big a job for any other agency to accomplish. He believes that the federal government should launch a gigantic construction program, as bold and sweeping as a debt moratorium, to provide jobs for the unemployed and to stimulate such confidence in business and financial circles that they will respond to the increased buying power thus created.

He likened business today to an automobile filled with gas, oil and water, apparently ready to run, but for some reason unable to get started. A huge government construction program actually under way would start it, he believes. The government can borrow money cheaply and there is a great amount of public work to do.

"I for one believe that when it is proved that the government can do something for the people which no other agency can do, it should not hesitate to get things started, and should not let technical or theoretical reasons stand in the way.

"If the government will help the people, the people will help the government. Patriotism will follow naturally. Then we need not fear gangsters, a Mussolini type of government or communism. Then we will be able to hand down to posterity our free system of institutions, unimpaired."

That prehistoric man in North Africa depended chiefly on snails for food is proved by huge mounds of snail shells excavated by members of several scientific expeditions in that country.

CONTROL OF WATER GREATEST PROBLEM FACING PEOPLE OF WEST, ACCORDING TO WILBUR

Problems facing the people of the west were outlined recently by Secretary of the Interior Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur in an address before members of the Commonwealth Club of California, in the Gold Ballroom of the Palace Hotel in San Francisco.

Control of water and irrigation are the principal problems facing the people of the west, according to Dr. Wilbur, who said in part:

"The number of people living in the great sweep of our country from the eastern face of the Rocky Mountains west is constantly increasing. Here we must fight against the lack of vegetation and seek the control of water to overcome the general aridity of climate. The ghosts of high hopes and the relics of failure lie at the fringe of many of our western communities in the form of dying vines and trees and abandoned homes and homesteads. Most of the west resisted the single homesteader who could win out against the prairie with plough and blinder.

Must Co-operate
"Only group efforts can beat the desert. Only through accumulations of men and money can the mountain be brought to supply its water for power and irrigation to the valleys.

"Co-operation is no soft and idealistic theory here in the west. It is the only basis of assured success. Every resource must be united if our progress is to continue. We are already dying at the fringes of our civilization. The margins press in upon us in a hundred ways. Our markets are distant and specialized. Let the Westerner study where his product goes, before he talks about our country as having no interest in other nations or in international well-being.

"Our harvest of native grasses and trees has been too grasping and has left us dust and gulches on our valuable hillides due to over-grazing, fire and murderous lumbering operations. Our spring floods are too intense, our reservoirs silt too fast, our protective ground covering is changing for the worse each year. Our irrigation laws are a jumble of sense, nonsense and varying traditions. No law or judicial decision can make water flow where there is none. Engineers must be our guides in water storage, flow and use. Peak years must be averaged with dry ones so that even use over decades may be available. Power developed from falling water must always be secondary to water for irrigation. If power now precedes in any case the tandem must be changed so that the higher use of water will come first."

"Each community must study itself and its relationships to soil, water, frost, and market. Our city and valley people must turn their vigilant eyes to the mountains from whence cometh their strength.

Forest Fires Costly
"Every forest fire costs you and me and our children a price, and often a heavy one. Overgrazing is paid for by us all. Whether we like it or not, the whole west with its peculiar and difficult problems must unite by communities and by states to overcome our common difficulties. We hear talk of five-year plans, twenty-year plans, and so on. We must plan for a hundred years ahead. If we are to be assured of stable homes, prosperous valleys, forests, and ample streams from our mountains. Our own actions and lack of foresight are bringing us death at the edges of our civilization. The desert once pushed back is again claiming its own in every western state.

"Cheap, plausible solutions may beguile us. Promises may soothe us. But facts are facts, and facts control. The scientist, the engineer, the skilled man of finance must be our guides; and we must scrap whatever the past has accumulated which is in our way."

A STORY IN PICTURES OF CHARLES A. LINDBERGH

AS A BOY—This picture was taken with his father, after whom young Lindbergh was named. The elder Lindbergh served as a United States congressman from the Sixth Minnesota district, during which time Charles Augustus, Jr., attended Friends' School in Washington, D. C.

AN EARLY FEAT—In 1921 young Lindbergh rode this motorcycle from Chicago to Louisville, Ky., in 24 hours to join the R. O. T. C. He was then a student at the University of Wisconsin and in order to arrive on time he rode day and night.

FLYING CADET—A picture taken in San Antonio, Tex., when Col. Lindbergh was a mere flying cadet. Here it was that he made his first parachute jump, after colliding with another plane at 5,000 feet.

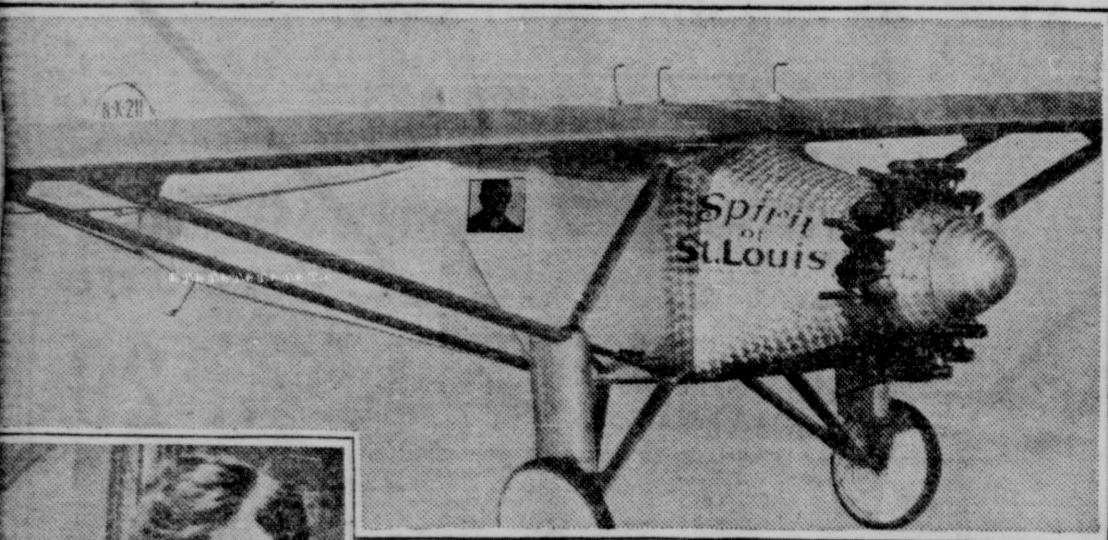

HIS MOST FAMOUS PICTURE—The celebrated "Viking" photograph, made by Frank Merta, NEA Service photographer, and considered one of the finest pictures of its kind ever made. Merta caught Lindbergh early one morning as the young aviator dropped from the skies in New York after a flight from Washington. This was shortly after the transatlantic flight.

LINDY AT ST. LOUIS—Returning to the city whose name he bore across the Atlantic, Lindbergh arrives in the immortal Spirit of St. Louis and prepares to put himself at the mercy of another welcoming committee. It was in St. Louis that he received the backing for his flight.

WITH HIS MOTHER—This picture was taken at Roosevelt Field, L. I., as Col. Lindbergh was about to depart on his flight to the Canal Zone. He was accompanied as far as Washington by his mother, Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, who is shown beside him.

WHEN HE FLEW THE ATLANTIC—The most famous airplane in the world, the Spirit of St. Louis, in which Lindbergh made his memorable flight. Left: Louis Bleriot, the first man to fly the English Channel, congratulates Lindbergh on his history-making flight.

Copyright, NEA-London Times.

HIS FIRST TASTE OF FAME—The late Myron T. Herrick, United States ambassador to France, leads the cheers as Paris roars its greeting to a new world hero. Left: The new "king of the air" meets the Prince of Wales at the Derby Eve Ball in London.

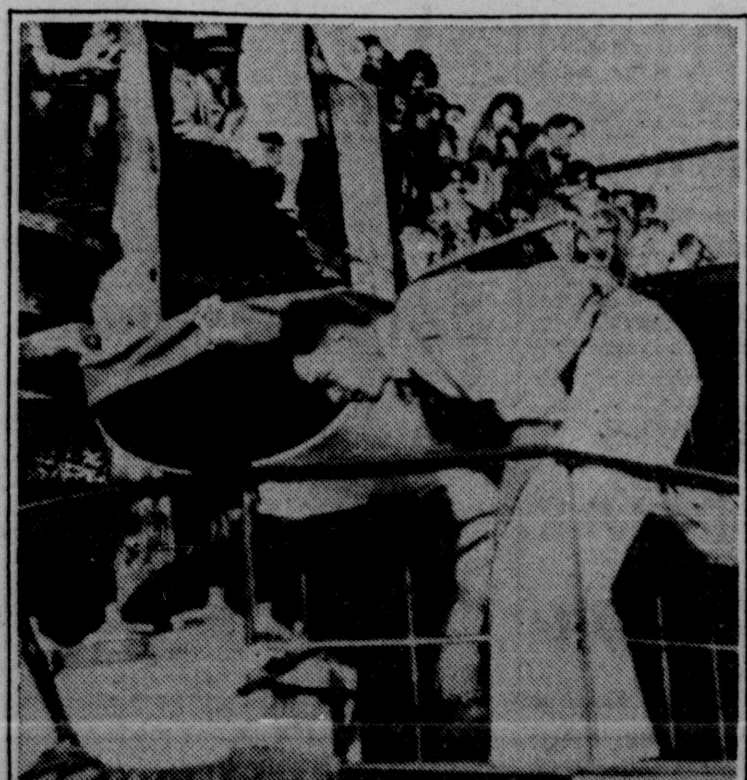

THE END OF THE GREAT FLIGHT—Scene at Le Bourget field on the night of May 21, 1927, as gendarmes formed around the Spirit of St. Louis to protect it and its daring pilot from the enthusiastic onslaught of thousands of Parisians, each bent on congratulating the intrepid young flyer on the completion of his New York-to-Paris flight.

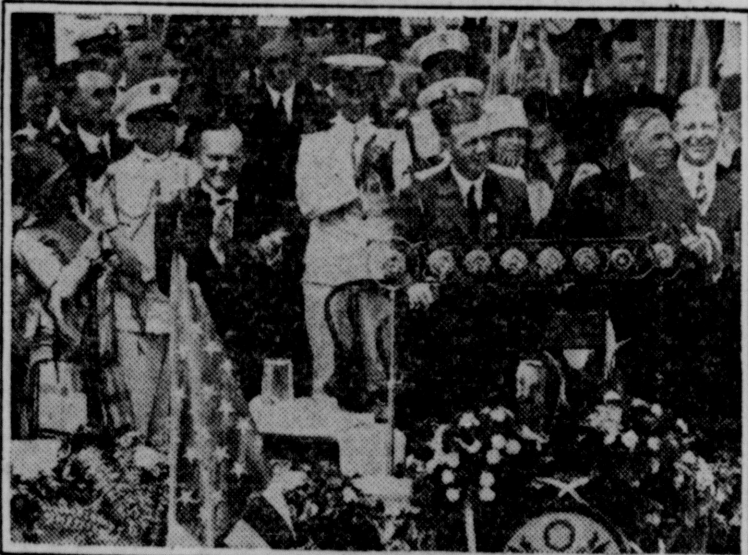

WIFE AND HEIR—Left: A picture of Anne Morrow while she was a student at Smith College. Below: The same young lady, now Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, gives the world a look at her son.

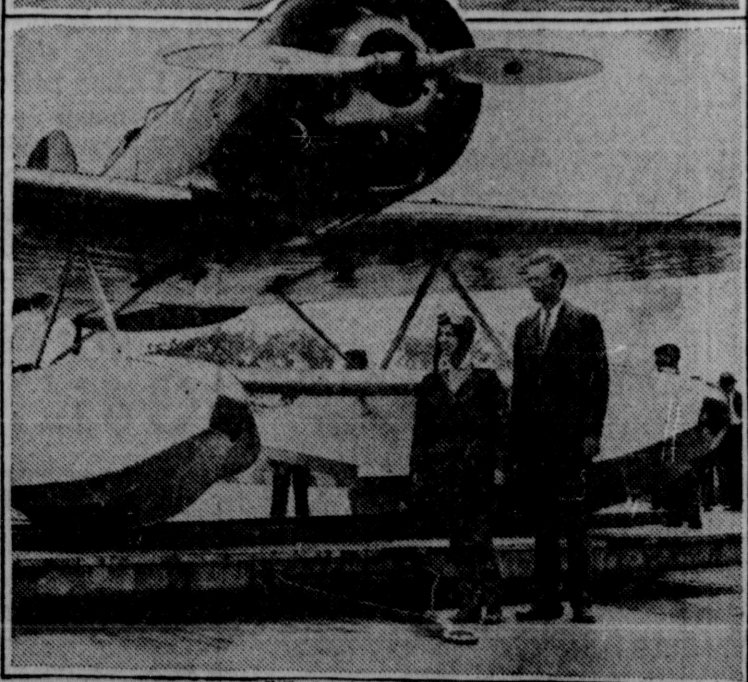

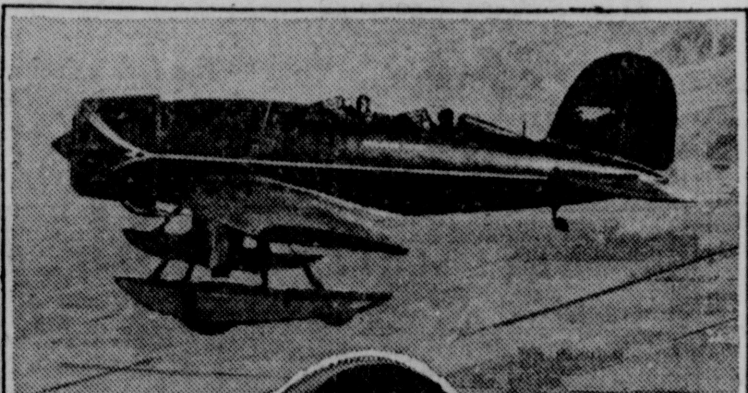

THE FIRST TEST—This photograph of Col. Lindbergh and his wife was taken in June, 1931, just before they made a trial of the wings upon which they planned to fly to the Orient.

THE HONEYMOONER—Despite heroic efforts to evade cameramen and crowds during his honeymoon, the world's most famous groom was snapped aboard the honeymoon yacht by an enterprising photographer.

THE OFFICIAL WELCOME—Returning from his transatlantic flight, Lindy was brought to Washington to receive the welcome of his country through the president of the United States. Calvin and Mrs. Coolidge are shown beside him on the left. Behind him, in a white uniform, is Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

TRYING OUT A NEW ONE—The picture at the top shows Lindy flying at Burbank, Calif., in 1929, in what was then described as a "mystery" plane. Below: Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh look over the plane in which they intend to fly to Japan, a Lockheed-Sirius. And its the same kind of ship.

MISSIONARIES GIVE TALKS AT UNION SERVICE

ORANGE, Aug. 17.—Two missionaries sent out by the Presbyterian and Methodist mission boards were on the program at the union church service last evening at the Methodist church.

"The Secret of Victory" was the subject of the sermon by the Rev. S. M. Eldsath, pastor of the Menonite Brethren in Christ church. The Rev. M. L. Pearson, retired pastor of the Presbyterian church, opened the union service last evening. "Consolation," by Lisat, was the piano prelude. A mixed chorus from the Presbyterian choir sang "The Shadows of the Evening Hours," by Barri, and Miss Dulcie Green sang, "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings," by Liddle. The offertory, "May Night," by Palmgren, and the postlude, "A. D. 1620," by MacDowell, were played by Miss Charlotte Hollister.

A. B. Coates, of India, a missionary sent out by the Methodist board, who has been on the field for 24 years, gave a few words.

The Rev. Lorn Hanna, missionary from Siam, sent out by the Presbyterian mission board, who is on furlough, gave a few words of greeting.

Announcement was made of the prayer service Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Baptist church with John Brown, evangelist as the speaker.

The Rev. Mr. Eldsath said in part: "The secret of victory is fellowship with God. Our victory over the world depends on our relationship to God, our faith. We need to be born of the spirit. We can know God and be born of the spirit. Except a man be born of God he cannot have the spiritual victory. We need a knowledge of the scriptures and a faith in God that will give you the victory. Who is he that overcometh the world? There is only one way back to God and that is through Jesus Christ. The secret of victory is higher than material standards, it is spiritual victory backed up by God. Walk in faith and believe in God."

Funeral Services For Robert Shaw Held On Tuesday

ORANGE, Aug. 17.—Funeral services are to be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Gillingly funeral chapel for Robert Shaw, 80, who passed away Friday evening after an illness of several months' duration. The services are to be conducted by the Rev. Harry E. Hinkle, pastor of the Baptist church in Garden Grove, and interment is to be made in Little Lake cemetery.

Mr. Shaw had been a resident of this community for the past four years. Surviving him are two sons, Frank Shaw of Talbert and Asbury Shaw of Laguna Beach; one daughter, Mrs. Pearl Gibson of Irvine, and a niece, Mrs. Charles Havens of Garden Grove.

'JESUS CHRIST' TOPIC OF L. A. PASTOR SUNDAY

ORANGE, Aug. 17.—"Jesus Christ" was the subject of the sermon Sunday morning by the Rev. John L. Brandt, of Los Angeles, at the Christian church, in the absence of the Rev. Franklin H. Minck, pastor, who is on his vacation. The Rev. Mr. Brandt is a world traveler and he brought a wealth of experience into his sermon. The anthem by the choir was "Crown Him Lord by Wilson. Mrs. Leon Des Larzes sang "I Shall Not Pass This Way Again," by Essinger.

The Rev. Mr. Brandt said in part: "God hath given Him a name. Eighty-one times Jesus speaks of Himself as the son of God. He belongs to the human race. He is the son of all races. He sympathizes with humanity. He is the one perfect character not under the influence of environment. His followers are called Christians which is the only name all churches can unite on. The highest glory of God was manifested in Jesus Christ. That name admits to glory. There is no other name given under heaven whereby we must be saved. There is salvation in no other name except Jesus Christ. Did we accept Jesus and were we transformed into the life of Christ? God's love has made it so."

Piles All Gone

Without Salves or Cutting
Itching, bleeding, protruding piles go quickly and don't come back if you remove the cause. Bad blood circulation in the hemorrhoidal veins causes piles by making the affected parts weak, flabby, almost dead. Salves and cutting fail because only internal medicine can actually correct these conditions. Dr. J. S. Leonard discovered a real internal cure for piles. After prescribing it for 1000 patients with success in 999 cases, he named it HEM-ROID. McCoy Drug Co. says one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile misery or money back—Adv.

ALAMITOS MAN TALKS SUNDAY IN EL MODENA

EL MODENA, Aug. 17.—At the morning service at the El Modena Friends church a beautiful solo entitled "I Remember Calvary" was sung by the pastor, the Rev. Joseph G. Reece. The address was given by the Rev. Clifford Jones of Alamitos. He said, in part: "As a scripture lesson I wish to read Romans 8:14-25, calling special attention to the 19th verse: 'For the earnest expectation of the creation waiteth for the revealing of the sons of God.' (American Revised Version.) I have become profoundly convinced in my own mind and heart that God has in this universe of his a great orderly progressive plan and purpose. That this plan and purpose has been manifested through the ages and that it is being manifested now."

"I would call the attention of those who are students of history to the middle ages; the light of Christ had been in the world for a century, but at that time civilization was almost swept from the earth. We have seen the barbarism of the middle ages and we have seen the steady, orderly progress which the race has made. God has brought us steadily upward and upward. I am going to remind you how Christ was born to rule the world; missionaries have been sent, but there is still much heathenism in Central and South America. A few centuries ago your ancestors and mine were offering human flesh as a sacrifice. We have come a long way. To know how to be just to the men you hire, and to be just to your neighbor is quite difficult, and yet we have been making orderly progress. Hoover's recommendation for a moratorium as concerning the debt of Germany to Great Britain, France, Belgium and this country is unheard of. I wish the world was Christian enough to cancel the debt and that instead of the treaty of Versailles that the nations would step out and bear others' burdens."

"If the nations of the world could catch the spirit of the Quakers, who carried a message of love and sympathy to Austria and Germany, during the World war, I wonder what would happen? A prophet is not without honor, except in his own country. When I was pastor of the church at Yorba Linda Miss Siegel was the music director. One day she came into the study and sat down and seemed to want to talk. So I closed my books and leaned back and we talked. She unburdened her heart. She said, 'I was in Berlin during the war and I saw little children starving to death and your people giving them milk that they might live.' She seemed to love all Quakers because they had done this thing. Christ is worthy such worship; it is the spirit of sharing in the Spirit of the Master, that's all."

"Well, we have advanced a long way. Men will not be interested in the Gospel unless the church, which is best able to work out the theory, does that thing from the standpoint of the world; unless the better thinking people lift up the standards of truth and justice. They are brought to men by those who know the heart of God. This is the task of the church. What a vast opportunity today! The whole creation waiteth eagerly for the revealing of the sons of God. The revealing of the sons of God leaves the lump and changes the standards of the community. They may pass law after law; the state can order constructive measures, but it can not change hearts. Conversion is the rational basis for clean, strong Christian life; a conversion so real that the emotional centers of that life may be stirred. It must go beyond the confines of man's brain, it must be added to the volition of his will. He wants to be like him, and it sets him to doing something."

OLD VOLUMES ARE OWNED BY ORANGE WOMAN

ORANGE, Aug. 17.—Mrs. A. H. Westerman of East Palmyra avenue, is the owner of a number of old and interesting volumes, the oldest of which dates back to 1695.

The books were the property of Mrs. Westerman's father, J. H. Harker, who was a teacher for 50 years in various schools of the United States.

Four of the volumes are exquisitely bound in vellum which is as soft as white velvet and is delicately shaded by age in many places to a soft brown. These volumes, which are in perfect condition, are printed on the rather thick blotting-like paper of that period and have hand-colored initials block letters at the beginning of each chapter.

The books are divided so as to cover the 12 months of the year and each chapter is devoted to a reading for morning or evening, and is dated accordingly.

The woodcuts in this book would make a collector of this type of picture envious, as they are detailed and beautifully done by Hubert Shalten, and were printed in Denmark at Copenhagen, but in the German language. The publisher is Johannes Lasen.

There are a number of other old volumes in the collection, one of which is a confession and communion book with a silver clasp on which the date 1742 is engraved. The book is dated 1735. Another old confessional and communion book is dated 1764.

Mr. Westerman states that all of these books are called "Smokers," as they were used by pastors and teachers while they meditated and smoked.

CHILD ESCAPES DEATH AS AUTO RUNS OVER LEG

ORANGE, Aug. 17.—Roberta Parks, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Parks, 165 North Cleveland street, was struck by an automobile yesterday morning in front of the First Methodist church, suffering a broken leg in the accident. The little girl got out of her father's car to go to Sunday school, according to a report at the police station, and ran back of the Parks car directly in the path of a car driven by Mrs. Avis Roy, 727 West Culver avenue.

The child's leg was broken below the knee and she was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, where the leg was put in a cast and an hour afterward she was removed to her home.

The little girl was struck by the left front wheel of the car and the fact that the vehicle was moving slowly is thought to account for the fact that she was not more seriously injured. The accident took place at 9:45 a. m. Officer Willet Winslow investigated.

DID YOU KNOW THAT— Chicago plays Michigan, Purdue, Wisconsin and Illinois this fall and would like to win them all. . . but the game the grand old man is pointing for is with Yale, October 17, in Chicago. . . Maroon material could be better than it will be this fall. . . and more experience would be welcome. . . The line will be green, but there is one capable man at guard. . . He is Sam Horwitz, captain, of two years' experience. . . There may be both a Stagg and a Page in the back field. . . The Stagg will be Paul, son of the grand old man. . . The Page will be F. J., son of the once great all-around Maroon star.

THE GRAND OLD MAN
An energetic press agent advises me that the first huddle of the 1931 football season is on. He tells me that Amos Alonzo Stagg, the grand old man of intercollegiate football is shaping his fall strategy because this is the year Chicago plays Yale, the grand old man's alma mater.

Blue will clash with Maroon October 17 in Chicago. Besides being the first midwestern invasion ever made by an Eli team, it will mark the first meeting on the gridiron of Yale and Chicago.

It was not possible for me to be around in the late '50s of the previous century, but if it had been I would have made it a point to watch the performance of young Lon Stagg at end on the Yale eleven. I am told that he was a combination of Ekersall, Booth, Oosterbaan, Grange and Pesier. He became a member of the first all-America eleven ever selected in 1888. The selection was that of the late Caspar Whitney, whose choices were continued by the late Walter Camp. Stagg also made Camp's first team in 1889.

FOURTY YEARS ON JOB
I am informed that the Chicago-Yale game will commemorate the grand old man's 40th year of coaching on the Midway. At this point it is well to mention that Stagg actually began his coaching career at Springfield Y. college two years before he came west to accept the Chicago post.

Would that I had been a Chicago student when this clean-living young athlete came west to make his name. The season of 1893 had started when he arrived on the scene. Only 15 aspirants answered his call for the football team, so he found it necessary to play a backfield position himself. It would be worth a lot now to

COUNTRY CLUB GOLFERS BEAT PUBLIC COURSE

Santa Ana Country club golfers defeated the Willowick club for the second time yesterday, defeating the representatives from the West Fifth street public course, 13 1-2 points to 5 1-2. The matches were held at the Santa Ana course.

Results:
B. R. Manker and R. E. Gray, Willowick, 1 1-2 points; B. V. Curry and J. K. McDonald, Santa Ana, 1 1-2 points.

Dr. C. E. Sauleberry and Bill Fowle, Santa Ana, 3; Frank Angell and Dick Ewert, Willowick, 0.

B. Z. McKinney and L. H. Robinson, Santa Ana, 3; R. E. Chapman and Van Pomeroy, Willowick, 0.

E. E. Wilson and A. W. Robinson, Santa Ana, 3; Frank Osborn and B. J. Morey, Willowick, 0.

AN ALL-STAR TEAM
These were the men who absorbed the teachings of Stagg and carried them to great heights, yet none of them made his only all-time all-star eleven. The members of that unbeatable combination were: Perseverance and Confidence, ends; Honesty and Courage, tackles; Participation and Co-operation, guards; Work, center; Self-control and Self-reliance, halfbacks; Obedience, fullback; and Dependability, quarterback.

Herbert L. Miller, Santa Ana merchant, joined A. G. Flagg in holding a leg on the Duffer's Cup when he won the second renewal of that new competitive tournament at the Santa Ana Country club over the week-end.

Miller's 89-24-66 was just good enough to nose out R. C. McMillan, who scored 86-20-66. Bob Fernandez was third with 88-20-68. Four others tied for fourth with net 69's. They were R. G. Burke, 87-18-69; Joe C. Miller, 91-24-67; Dr. W. S. Wallace, 89-20-69, and P. R. Davis, 89-24-69.

Country club sweepstakes:
Match play: Class A—M. N. Thompson and B. V. Curry, even; L. R. Kennedy, Ed Holmes and J. K. McDonald, two down. Class B—Dr. A. H. Domann, one up; R. C. McMillan, even; R. G. Cartwright, A. C. Flagg, J. R. Huber and R. W. Bales, one down.

Medal play: Class A—Hugh Shields, 84-14-70; Ed Holmes, 79-6-73; B. V. Curry, 81-6-75; M. N. Thompson, 87-12-75; Dr. M. A. Patton, 89-14-75. Class B—H. L. Miller, 91-24-67; Bob Fernandez, 86-18-68; G. A. Oliver, 85-16-69; C. P. Patton, 85-16-69.

MRS. MOODY IS FAVORITE OVER FIELD OF 64

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 17.—(UP)—Miss Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Calif., opened the 44th annual women's national tennis singles championship today by defeating Miss Mae Cuervo, left-handed star of Wichita, Kan., 6-2, 6-2, in a first round match. Less than 1000 persons were in the sun-baked stands to watch the California girl win her opening match at will.

BY HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 17.—(UP)—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody today opened her campaign for a seventh national women's tennis championship against a field including 64 of the finest players of this country and England.

Winner of the title every year from 1922 to 1930, except in 1926, when illness prevented her from competing, Mrs. Moody is an overwhelming favorite to regain the championship, which now belongs to Miss Betty Nuthall, England's No. 1 player.

Miss Nuthall is on hand for the trophy, which she won last year in the absence of Mrs. Moody and Miss Helen Jacobs, but is not a sure bet to reach the finals. She is paired in the lower half of the draw with Miss Jacobs, who already holds two decisions over her this year.

Although Miss Jacobs and Miss Nuthall are favored to meet in the semi-finals, it is almost possible that neither will reach that stage of competition. The lower bracket is cluttered with top-flight players, including Miss Marjorie Morrill, Mrs. Marion Jessup, Mrs. Shepherd-Barron of England and Baroness Levis of Rome, and any one of these might turn back one of the favorites.

Mrs. Moody, despite the presence in the upper section of the draw of such capable players as Miss Dorothy Round, England; Miss Sarah Paley, Boston, and Mrs. John Van Ryn, Philadelphia, is not expected to be extended in her march to the final bracket.

She will play her opening match this afternoon against Miss Edith Stranney. Miss Jacobs is paired today with Miss Mae Cuervo, and Miss Nuthall is matched with Mrs. Bernard P. Stenz.

Grid Star Hurt As Auto Smashes Pole

MARTINEZ, Cal., Aug. 17.—(INS)—Angelo ("Angel") Brovelli, St. Mary's college fullback, who occasioned the Pasadena Rams several bad moments in their game with St. Mary's at New York last year, today was recovering from minor injuries received when he fell asleep at the wheel of his automobile and struck a telephone pole on the highway near here.

Phoenix Baseball President Killed

WELLTON, Ariz., Aug. 17.—(INS)—Ed O'Malley, president of the Phoenix baseball club and former head of the Phoenix boxing commission, was dead here today as the result of a fall from the observation platform of a train en route to Covina, Cal., where he was to join his family.

CLIPPINGS BEST PART OF BETTY'S GAME WHISPER NET CRITICS OF MISS NUTHALL

By HENRY McLEMORE
(U. P. Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(UP)—Several of our better tennis experts—and by experts we mean those gentlemen who, although they spend the entire day watching the center court, somehow manage to keep the stroke analysis on the play in Court No. 44, three blocks away—have been saying some pretty mean things about Miss Betty Nuthall.

Their most cruel observation to date has been that the buxom English lass' rating as the world's second best women's tennis player is due not so much to her stroke production as to her magnificent collection of newspaper clippings.

Now there is nothing very subtle or tactful about this observation. The experts might just as well come right out and say that if Betty was not the most headlined and photographed player of the game, not even excepting Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, she wouldn't be ranked in the same group with Mrs. Moody, Miss Helen Jacobs, Mrs. Rene Mathieu of France

STRIBLING IN L.A.: PRAISES MAX SCHMELING

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 17.—(INS)—W. L. ("Young") Stribling of Georgia, recently defeated by Max Schmeling, world's heavyweight boxing champion, was in Los Angeles today on a vacation, having arrived by plane from the east.

Although admitting that he is planning a trip to Europe in November, Stribling declared that he was not chasing Schmeling for another fight.

"I'm the champion, let it go at that," he said. "He is a great fighter. He can punch and he has stamina and he's a shrewd boxer. 'But just let me say this, I believe I could have made a better showing at Cleveland if I hadn't trained so much. I think I was overtrained for that fight.'"

Grove Imitator Holds Cardinal Club To 2 Hits

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—These long-shot bettors who plan to risk their money on the St. Louis Cardinals in the world series had something to worry about today. BELL, LONG BEACH MANAGER, HURLS PRO CHARGES AGAINST ANAHEIM, SANTA ANA TEAMS

Embers of a smoldering feud that have burned beneath the surface for months burst into flame today when Joe Bell, manager of the Long Beach club of the National Night Baseball league, openly charged Anaheim and Santa Ana with professionalism.

Bell's sweeping indictment was issued in white heat after a stormy conference with George Pace, Anaheim pilot, over the time and place of an Anaheim-Long Beach game which has no bearing on the waning pennant race.

The teams are listed to play at Long Beach Friday, but Pace requested the date changed because of the impending Santa Ana-Anaheim championship series which calls for games Wednesday and Friday of this week. Pace offered Bell all of the gate receipts if Long Beach would play at Anaheim tonight.

Bell's Blast
This Bell refused, then let out his blast.

"Anaheim has ruined night baseball in this locality," he roared. "It determined to have a championship team at any cost and the sky was the limit. Seventeen straight victories. With that pro team in this supposedly amateur league, it should win 117 straight games!"

"Anaheim and Santa Ana are the chief offenders. They are steeped in professionalism. From a simon-pure amateur sport in an amateur league, they have broken every rule for the sake of winning. 'As soon as Anaheim built up a safe lead in the second half, I ran the league. Its high-handed methods have spoiled more games this year than blind umpires' decisions. The Valencias have as much as told every league manager to take a flying leap into the nearest lake."

"If we challenge Anaheim on any point, we receive nothing but rebuffs. We had a perfect right to expect Anaheim here Friday night. That game belonged to us, according to the official schedule. Yet, because Anaheim wants to start its seven-game series with Santa Ana early—so as to make enough money to foot the 1931 payroll—we have to suffer the consequences."

May Oust S. A. Anaheim
"If Anaheim and Santa Ana want professional clubs, that is their business. But they have no business in our supposedly amateur league. There are more teams in the loop who will vote for amateur baseball than the pro variety."

"There will be no recurrence. At the start of the 1932 season we will put it to a vote. If Anaheim and Santa Ana are still professionally inclined—or any other club, for that matter—they can enter a confederation of their own. We want no part of them."

"Anaheim's triumph is a hollow one. There is no more glory to a club of its standing winning a league title than there would be to the Philadelphia Athletics entering the Three I league and waltzing off with the pennant."

"LOSER'S SQUAWK" VIEW OF SANTA ANA OFFICIALS
"Just the squawk of a poor loser."

That was the comment of Santa Ana club officials today on the barrage of words about professionalism laid down by Long Beach's Bell.

"We do not care to enter into a controversy with Mr. Bell or any one else, but we feel our integrity has been challenged and that we have a right to defend ourselves. 'Where and when the Anaheim-Long Beach contest is played is a problem those clubs must settle. It is not our game. The Santa Ana team will play all its games, as scheduled. 'However, it must be remem-

Approximately 1500 of the best seats at the Bowl will be available at the Victor Walker sporting goods store, 219 West Fourth street, where the ticket sale will be conducted all day Tuesday and Wednesday.

The rest of the tickets for the reserved block will be sent to Anaheim. Valencia fans are expected to use at least 100 tickets. They are wildly excited about their team. The greatest rush for pasteboards in the history of Orange county night ball is expected when the local ticket booth is opened, as interest in the impending playoffs is at high pitch all over the National Night league circuit. A sellout is certain.

All Seats Reserved
Every seat in the main grandstand sections has been reserved and this will make it possible for Santa Ana to seat a capacity crowd of approximately 3600. Those without tickets will be admitted if they can stand at every seat.

Admission prices will be 25 cents at every seat. League rules governing this tariff.

Santa Ana and Anaheim will play a four-out-of-seven series and the winner will be privileged to meet the champion of the American Night league, probably Colton, for the Southern California title.

The teams will clash in the second game of the playoffs at Anaheim next Friday, here again Aug.

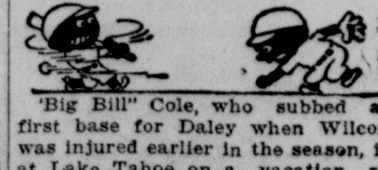

ust 24, at Anaheim August 26, and thereafter at alternate places until the series is completed.

"Short" Smith, Jack Dillon and Jim Jolley will be umpires, with "Tuffy" Tyrell acting as alternate.

Anaheim 2-1 Favorite
Anaheim has been installed as a 2-1 favorite at most places about the baseball wheel. Santa Ana players and officials claim confidence, but unbiased critics think Anaheim has the edge at every position except second base, shortstop and left field that the Stars, without their peerless catcher, the injured "Denny" Wilcox, will be like a ship without a rudder. Some of the experts predict a brief series, with Anaheim winning in four or five games, and requiring certainly not more than six.

Paul Neal, Anaheim shortstop, may not be able to play in the series because of a knee injury, but as his substitute, lanky Mal Higgins, is considered a better fielder and hitter anyhow the Valencias will not feel Neal's loss very keenly. Wilcox, on the other hand, has long been regarded as the brains as well as the sparkplug of the Stars and his absence is sure to be known although Ed Daley, who will do the coaching, is a smart, able substitute.

First Base Job Open
Manager George Lackaye is worrying about first base more than the catching chores.

"Big Bill" Cole, who subbed at first base for Daley when Wilcox was injured earlier in the season, is at Lake Tahoe on a vacation so Lackaye will have to use either Randolph Bell or Joe Mene, both outfielders, at the initial sack. The Stars' manager probably won't decide definitely who to start there until after Santa Ana's last league game at Westminster tomorrow night. Mene is scheduled to play the first five or six innings with Bell finishing the job. The one who impresses Lackaye most will work against Anaheim Wednesday. Leavitt Daley, still nursing a spike wound, is expected back at second base tomorrow. His bat and speed will be needed badly in the series.

LOAN SURVEY SHOWS WOMEN GOOD SAVERS

Asserting that newspaper advertising today is largely directed to women and that not only is the purchasing power of this country in the hands of the female sex, but that they are steadily gaining control of an increasing proportion of the individual wealth of the United States, W. L. Copeland, manager of the Santa Ana branch of the Pacific States Savings and Loan company, revealed that this information was obtained in a recent survey conducted by the California Building-Loan league.

"More than 45 per cent of the 600,000 investors in building and loan associations of this state are women, indicating that they are good savers as well as good buyers," Copeland said the survey showed. "These 270,000 women have an average investment in these institutions of $761, and have conserved for the future use of their families, $205,200,000."

"Of the individual wealth of the United States, 41 per cent is controlled by women. Women have received 70 per cent of the estates left by men, according to the Building-Loan league, and 64 per cent of the estates left by women.

"Advertisers are recognizing that women are the largest purchasers, not only of family needs, but of men's socks and neckwear as well. Of a list of 11 items of general character, women exceed men as buyers in nine of them."

"Building and loan associations have found in financing home ownership that the woman is an important influence in selecting the home or determining the type of home which is to be built. After the loan is made, it is the persistent desire of the woman to possess a home of her own that insures the payments being made regularly."

"The following figures compiled by a radio corporation give a convincing idea of the importance of the wife, sister or mother in the purchasing markets of the nation, listing the percentages of purchases by men and women:

"Drug supplies, men, 32; women, 78. Groceries, men 19; women, 81. Silks, men, 2; women, 98. Planos, men, 23; women, 75. Leather goods, men, 33; women, 67. Automobiles, men, 59; women, 41. Hardware, men, 51; women, 49. Electrical goods, men, 20; women, 80. Men's socks, men, 25; women, 75. Jewelry, men, 20; women, 80. Men's neckwear, men, 37; women, 63."

LAW MAKES DRUG ADDICTS VAGRANTS

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 17.—(UP)—Every drug addict in California, rich or poor, is now a vagrant in the eyes of the law.

Under an amendment to the penal code, which became effective this week, important changes were made in the definition of drug addicts who are vagrants.

The provision that such an addict must be one "who endangers public health, morals or safety" was removed, together with the provision that he must be "beyond the power of self-control."

As the law now stands, any person who habitually takes or uses narcotics, except when under a physician's care, is recognized as an addict, and, as such, a vagrant. This subjects him to a fine up to $500, a jail sentence up to 6 months or both fine and imprisonment.

TIMES CHANGE CORN PRICE

GRAND ISLAND, Neb.—When a farmer hauls a load of corn to town here today he receives less than 50 cents per bushel. But, in December, 1858, when he hauled a load to old Fort Kearney, government frontier post on the Platte river, he received $4.36 per bushel from the government.

joyable afternoon of cards, of which there were three tables, scores were checked. First prize was awarded Mrs. Floyd, second to Mrs. Keller and consolation to Mrs. Ward.

KREG ARTISTS TO ENTERTAIN EXCHANGE CLUB

At the noon-day luncheon of the Santa Ana Exchange club several KREG artists will provide entertainment.

The program department of KREG is co-operating with Mr. Carl M. Stein, chairman of the program committee for the month of the Santa Ana Exchange club, in providing their entertainment for tomorrow's luncheon.

A few of KREG's radio artists will appear at that time in person and provide an interesting program of entertainment for the club members and their guests.

Among the artists who will entertain at the club meeting will be such favorites as Jesse Morelock, "The Girl Hill Billy" who has attained much popularity with her radio programs. Johnny Maxwell, "the tenor with a tear in his voice," will make every effort to be present and croon a few of his delightful ballads, accompanied by Art Cannon, popular pianist of KREG.

"Bud and His Buddies" will feature several old ranch tunes and wailing numbers of the kind that keep KREG's telephone busy during their program, and "Three Girls," harmony duo and pianist will entertain with popular duets.

RHYTHM BOYS TO PRESENT PROGRAM

Tonight at 8 o'clock Glen Osborne's Rhythm Boys will broadcast for an hour with a full nine-piece orchestra, originating plenty of harmony and rhythm for an hour from KREG's studio, according to studio officials.

The personnel of this popular organization is as follows: Glen Osborne, leader and piano; Bob Quollette, first tenor saxophone; Chuck Billa, third alto saxophone; Clarence Venable, first trumpet; Carlton Smith, second trumpet; Bill Chandler, bass; Charles Clayton, drums; Wayne Goodale, banjo.

KREG NOTES

Lynwood Young and Art Cannon will be on the air again tonight with one of their vocal and piano programs. Young is building up one of the steepest followings of any star singing over KREG. They will be on the air from 7 p. m. until 7:30.

Jesse Morelock, "The Girl Hill Billy," broadcasts another one of her popular programs today.

No wasted time

Use it, riding to town the comfortable way

WHY WASTE an hour or so a day between here and Los Angeles? Such non-productive time is a logical means for sound economy and can be made to pay big dividends.

You need this time... if not for reading, planning or study, then for the necessary rest and relaxation to tone up mind and body for productive effort. Daily travel time is available for these important uses when the Big Red Cars whisk you swiftly over smooth steel rails past traffic jams to town and back.

The Big Red Cars will save you money as well as time... more than half the cost of going some other way... because Monthly Pass and Commutation fares are only 1.4 cents a mile.

Important, too, will be elimination of the nerve strain of traffic... parking and parking fees, the unquestionably greater safety and convenience of fast, frequent, carefully planned schedules.

You can't lose by giving the Big Red Cars an actual test and proving these advantages. Get schedules and fares on your line from your local agent or call Tucker 7272 in Los Angeles today.

KREG OFFERS BIG VARIETY OF DIVERSION

Diversified and entertaining programs are scheduled for broadcast from KREG tonight and tomorrow morning, according to KREG's program director.

Immediately following the silent period from 1:30 to 2:30 this afternoon, Jesse Morelock will entertain with guitar and songs of the past and present.

Dot McCune will offer a group of piano selections at 2:00 p. m., including requested numbers received by letter or telephone. She also delights many listeners with her piano and vocal numbers Tuesday evenings and at other times during the week.

At 4 p. m. Miss Lulu Walker will be heard in a selected group of readings. Although Miss Walker has been entertaining from KREG for a short time, she has pleased many of her audience with her readings in dialect and in her natural voice.

One of the most popular of KREG programs begins at 4:15 when "Bud and His Buddies" take charge of the "mike." KREG's telephone is always busy during the 45 minutes that these "hill billy" boys sing old favorites and talk of the "old ranch house." After 5 p. m., "Those Three Girls," harmony duo and piano artists, will again be heard at their usual hour, followed by late news of the day and the Shoppers' Guide program.

Another interesting talk by W. M. Cory of interest to local farmers will be given at 6:45 under the auspices of the Farm Bureau. Lynwood Young and Art Cannon will be heard again this evening at 7 o'clock in a program of selected spirituals and piano numbers. They will be followed at 7:30 by the well known Honolulu Playboys in a half hour of Hawaiian and popular music.

At 8 p. m., Glen Osborne's Rhythm Boys will hold forth in the studio to the delight of lovers of dance rhythm and music, and at 9 p. m. an hour of Spanish music and entertainment will begin.

From 10 until 11 p. m. KREG's Night Owl will conduct the last program of the day, a group of popular phonograph records and a request program open to the radio public by telephone to the station.

Bible Class and Church Move for Sunday Closing

The men's community Bible class of Santa Ana and the First Christian church congregation passed a resolution yesterday morning strongly opposing Sunday operation of food stores in this city. The resolution carried a pledge not to patronize any food store which remains open for business on Sunday.

It was pointed out that there is a growing tendency toward Sunday operation of grocery stores which has manifested itself particularly in the past year or so. The passing of the resolution was an effort on the part of these two groups to prevent the Sunday opening to become a wholesale custom among food stores.

W. B. Martin, leader in the Bible class, in discussing the resolution today, said:

"There is no desire to urge closing of stores which sell necessities, such as drug stores, service stations and restaurants."

Addresses Heard Yesterday In Santa Ana Churches

BIBLE STUDENT TAKES LOOK AT WORLD AFFAIRS

Those who attended the union service at First Methodist church Sunday evening had the unusual privilege of looking at the world through the eyes of American youth, an experience which was much enjoyed.

Andrew Juvinal, student at Garrett Biblical Institute, Chicago, was the youth who brought the impressions gathered on an extended trip around the world made immediately following his graduation from Northwestern university in 1928. Accompanied by a college classmate, he spent nearly two years in travel, the trip taking them into many lands, and giving them the opportunity to visit persons and places out of the usual trails of travel.

The general conclusions which the young man drew from his observations were of striking interest to his audience, reflecting the broadening influence of contacts with other peoples and other lands.

The universal hospitality of the peoples he visited impressed Juvinal primarily. Wherever he went he found people ready with information, with courteous assistance, and with their homes open to the travelers. The further he went from the beaten tracks, the more friendliness he found. In Japan, being welcomed into the home of a stranger and shown every consideration, "I found myself wondering," he said, "whether a Japanese youth, touring in America, would have been as well received and as kindly treated by strangers as we were. I am inclined to believe that there is more open-hearted hospitality, more willingness to welcome the stranger, in some other parts of the world than in the United States."

Another effect of the trip was in modifying certain of the "one hundred per cent" American traditions. He found that other lands had highly developed civilizations, and that some of them were frankly critical of America's attitude on points for which he had no reply. Our hesitation to enter with other nations into the World Court, our reputation for crime and divorce, our maintenance of extensive armaments, and some of our commercial policies were found not to be altogether popular. "The United States gained much popular favor in China by refunding the Boxer indemnity," said Juvinal, "but we have sacrificed a great deal of that favor by our policy of holding to the extra-territorial rights along with other nations, and by stationing our war vessels and our marines in Chinese territory. This may be necessary for the protection of our business interests, but it does not help promote friendly feelings."

His third impression was the discovery that America does not have a monopoly on the best of everything. "Germany has better music, France is ahead of us in art, and several countries have gone in advance in their provisions for social needs, such as unemployment insurance, old age pensions, decent residences for laboring people and the like."

"My general view of the human race and the possibility of world friendships has been greatly widened by these observations. I found that people in other lands are just as human as Americans, many of them just as intelligent, if not more so, and all of them apparently children of the same God and Creator. I could never bring myself to hate these other peoples, or to go out to fight against them in battle, after having lived with them and found friends among them."

Mr. Juvinal was heard by a large audience who followed his words and pictures with deep interest.

ORIENTAL WAR IMPENDING IS FORD WARNING

"The hordes of the orient are preparing for war and it will be a war that will sweep every nation on the globe into its cauldron," Evangelist John E. Ford said last night to an audience that packed the tabernacle, filling every seat, and many standing throughout the entire service.

The Hanson sisters from Portland, Ore., presented several violin and piano numbers.

"Probably never before in history has there been a time when there was as much unrest and a spirit of war among the peoples of the east as there is now. There are 300,000,000 Mohammedans who would be glad for a chance to destroy every Christian in the world. All India is in rebellion against Great Britain. China is racked by war from one end to the other. Japan at present seems to be enjoying a little time of peace, but during that time is preparing for war."

"But it has been only a short time since the war dogs of Japan and America were pulling at their chains. But just because there is no open manifestation of hostility at the present is no sign that no danger exists. The situation between Japan and America is like a dormant volcano that may at any moment erupt with violence."

Mr. Ford read a number of statements from prominent writers and statesmen showing the strained relations between the two nations, brought about largely because of the exclusion of Japanese from American shores.

"The prophecy of Joel declares that in the days just before the return of Christ the heathen will awaken and make unprecedented preparation for war and the book of Revelation adds the last chapter to the prediction by saying that the great war of Armageddon will start just as soon as Turkey, the kingdom of the Euphrates, comes to its end. Turkey has been on the way toward its end for a long time. Only a little more than a century ago it was one of the most formidable nations on the globe, but today it is only a little strip of land of 174,000 square miles with a population of 8,000,000."

Quotes Prophecy

"Turkey, having fulfilled to the letter its part of the prophecy, the next prophetic scene was to be the awakening for war of the kingdom of the 'sunrising.' The word, 'Nippon' (Japan), means sun-rising and their national flag is a rising sun. The people of the orient, under the leadership of Japan, will move westward through Asia Minor and there on the historic plains of Megiddo will be fought the greatest battle of all time, with all nations represented."

"But in the midst of the roar of

GOSPEL POWER OUTLINED BY REV. R. HARLOW

At the First United Brethren church at 1101 West Third street the Rev. R. W. Harlow, pastor, spoke Sunday morning on the subject "The Power of the Gospel."

He said:

"The theme of the book of Romans is 'The Gospel of God.' He sets forth the very widest possible designation of the whole body of redemption truth. God has no respect for persons. The gospel is for the whole world. He is not the God of the Jews only, but of the Gentiles also. The whole world, regardless of race or color, is included in his great blood atonement, which he wrought out for us because of his great love for the world."

"The whole world is guilty before God. 'All have sinned and come short of the glory of God.' Redemption is revealed in Jesus Christ as wide as the need, upon the lone condition of faith. 'If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.'"

Paul gives us justification through the righteousness of God by faith, which is the gospel remedy for guilt, crucifixion with Christ, the resurrection life of Christ, and the walk in the spirit, the gospel provision for inherent sin.

"The Gospel of Christ is great because it is the only gospel of deliverance from sin and the power of appetite. It is great because it is the plan of God purchased by his son Jesus Christ through his immaculate conception and his virgin birth. His life among men, his cruel death on the cross, where he shed his own blood for us; his burial, his resurrection and his ascension; and by it only can man ever hope to be saved from sin and eternal death."

"It is great because it is the dynamite of God unto salvation."

"The Hebrew and Greek words for salvation imply the ideas of deliverance, safety, preservation, healing and soundness. Salvation is the great inclusive word of the Gospel, gathering into itself all the redemptive acts and processes, viz: Justification, redemption, grace, propitiation, imputation, forgiveness, adoption, sanctification and glorification."

"Salvation is in three tenses: First, the believer has been saved from the guilt and penalty of sin; second, the believer is saved from the habit and dominion of sin; and third, the believer is constantly being kept saved by his conformity to the will of God. It is a free gift from God and wholly without works."

It is not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saves us, by the washing of regeneration and the renewing of the Holy Ghost. The divine order under grace is: first salvation, then work. Accept him and go to work."

cannon will come a voice from heaven saying 'It is done,' the earth will shake in terror and then Jesus Christ will sweep down from the glory land to take over the kingdoms of the world and bring everlasting peace."

REV. E. W. MATZ, MINISTER OF FIRST EVANGELICAL CHURCH CONDUCTS UNION SERVICES

The Rev. E. W. Matz, pastor of the First Evangelical church, delivered the sermon at the union services held in Birch park yesterday. Music was furnished by Kenneth and Clarence Rohrs, of the Evangelical church.

"Depart from evil and do good," offering kindness, goodness, faithfulness, meekness and self-control.

"To depart from evil is a good beginning toward righteousness. But it is not sufficient to be negatively good. The need of the hour is more than negative goodness or harmlessness; it is positive righteousness. It is possible to depart from evil, and be harmless, even harmless to sin. It is possible to be so harmless that sin is not disturbed or alarmed in the community in which we may live. But if we are followers of Christ, then we are disturbers of sin and promoters of righteousness."

"The problem of evil is as old as mankind. It is the cause of misery and sorrow. It is the cause of wars and conflicts in this world. Sin will assert itself. We cannot evade the issue of sin. Sin is unrighteousness, and aggressive evil. Is there any way of overcoming evil? Many methods have been tried. One of the most common and oldest methods is war. There have been many wars in the past, but evil is still with us."

More than 1900 years ago there appeared a Man in Palestine who offered a new method of overcoming evil. He said: 'Overcome evil with good.' Expel darkness by letting in the light. But the world has never had the courage to even try this method on a large scale. Many have ventured to do this in their own private lives and have found that it works."

"What are the necessary equipments for doing good? Is it necessary to have a strong healthy body? Yes, but many an invalid mind and soul that has blessed the world. Or someone may say, 'If I had a million dollars, then I could do good.' But the world's greatest benefactors have not been millionaires. Or some one may suggest education as necessary equipment. Yes, indeed education has done much for man's welfare. But the universe is not founded on wisdom. It is founded on love. The fundamental equipment for doing good is goodness itself. One cannot do good unless he is good. That is why Jesus set Himself to the task of making folks good, before He commissioned them to do good. Only a good tree can bear good fruit. He said, 'A corrupt tree cannot bear good fruit, nor can a good tree bear corrupt fruit. A right relationship with God is necessary before there can be a right relationship with man. A right relationship with God and man go hand in hand. One cannot be unrighteous with man and at the same time be in a right relationship with God.'"

"The characteristics of a righteous life are manifested by courage, faith and love, or as Paul would say, by the fruits of the Spirit: love, joy, peace, long suffering, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, meekness and self-control."

JESUS HEALING OF SINNER IS SERMON TOPIC

Jesus forgiving and healing a sinner was the topic of the sermon delivered yesterday at the Southside Church of Christ by the Rev. C. C. Houston, pastor. The text was Mark 2:1-17. The speaker said, in part:

"Jesus came again into Galilee, and quietly entered into the city of Capernaum, and probably went into the home of Peter. The people soon learned about this, and came together. He spoke the word unto them. This was always his important theme. It should be today. The young teacher and miracle worker was arousing great excitement now, and Pharisees and doctors of the law were there. A company of four carried a palsied man and let him down through the roof into the presence of Christ. Here the idea of help and doing for others who could not help themselves is strongly illustrated. Here also we may see that by our lives shown, good may be done, lives made better and happiness promoted by us. We may note that personal influence and work is a great factor in leading others to the Christ. Also there is another good lesson here that many difficulties may be overcome, and that such do not mean that we are going wrongly, or that God would have us stop."

"Jesus saw their works. Faith and works are inseparably connected. He that really believes will act accordingly. Their faith was something to be seen. There were three things here recorded that prove his direct divine power on earth: The speaking of sins forgiven, the raising of their evil thoughts and the healing of the palsied man."

"The enemy here had reasoned from the wrong premise. They attributed what he said as blasphemy. They thought him no more than a man, and if so, he blasphemed in what he said. They did not believe him God's son, nor that he had such power. But before they had hardly thought over what had been said he was reading their evil thought and so said, and added more to their confusion, and also demonstrated the attributes which they thought alone belonged to God. And before they had time to recover from this and to leave them without excuse for not believing, he said: 'That ye may know that the Son of Man has power on earth to forgive sins, then saith he to the sick of the palsy, "I say unto thee, arise, take up thy bed and walk!"' This was a master stroke and the Master's stroke. These accumulated miracles attested and proved his divinity and linked him to the Deity. As a test of his authority and power divine they were very convincing to those who reasoned rightly."

JESUS, COMMON PEOPLE, SUNDAY MORNING TOPIC

The Rev. U. E. Harding, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene, spoke Sunday evening on "Jesus and the Common People," taking as his text St. Mark 12:37: "And the common people heard him gladly." He said, in part:

"Those who sought Christ to follow him were the common people. At the time of my text the scribes and Pharisees with a lawyer tried to trap him. When they failed in this attempt they went away. And Mark says, 'The common people were glad to hear him.' Jesus says, 'Not many wise or rich are called' and that 'God hath chosen the poor of this world rich in faith.'"

"Jesus never rounded the corners for the rich and powerful of his day. He said more about a widow that gave a mite than a millionaire who would have built him a synagogue. He was of the poor and as the world would say, the common herd, of his day. Born in a manger, lived in the carpenter's trade, faced the trials as a laboring man, had to perform a miracle to pay his tax. His seamless robe was a gift of charity and he had no provision made for his burial, yet he rested in the tomb of a rich man."

"Some of you are thinking more about a resting place for your body than the future of your soul. 'He chose humble fishermen to preach his gospel. When John the Baptist asked for a further proof that he was the Christ he knew that the Baptist was a student of prophecy, so he said, 'Tell John the poor have the gospel preached to them.' He made himself of no reputation, ate with sinners, forgave and blessed thieving men and fallen women."

"Abraham Lincoln said, 'God must have loved the common people, for he made so many of them.' From that crowd have come the leaders in church and state. Moses was the son of a slave's wife, David a shepherd; John Wesley from a family of 13, and what shall we say of Lincoln from the log cabin, Herbert Hoover an orphan."

Naboth Vineyard Seizure Lecture Subject Sunday

Ahab and Jezebel seizing the Naboth vineyard formed the theme of the talk given at the men's community Bible class in the Fox West Coast theater yesterday morning by the Rev. W. S. Buchanan, class teacher. Harvey Stripling, vice president, presided. Lynwood Mitchell, colored musician, sang a group of Negro spirituals and Ingham's seven-piece orchestra played special selections.

The Rev. Mr. Buchanan recalled that Ahab, king of Israel, wanted to buy Naboth's vineyard, but Naboth wouldn't sell it because it was his father's. So, in order to get the property, Ahab's wife, Jezebel, had Naboth accused unjustly of crime and as a result he was executed.

The significance of this story in modern life was shown by the class teacher, who pointed out that selfishness and greed may lead to serious consequences in crime when the desire for material possessions becomes an obsession.

Hostess Trio Presides At Lovely Party in Johnson Home

Mrs. Clarence Van Dusen, Mrs. Harold Smith and Mrs. Fred S. Johnson comprised the hospitable hostess trio at a lovely party given Saturday afternoon to honor Mrs. Howard A. Shugart. The affair was held in the Johnson home at 601 South Main street.

On arriving, guests found that a large stock was waiting to take charge of their packages. Later, in a dining room, the decorations of the home evidenced a delicate pink and white color scheme, with a vivid touch contributed by bouquets of zinnias, marigolds and asters from the home gardens of Mrs. Van Dusen.

Bridge was played, and when scores were added on the appropriate little tallies, prizes for scoring first and second high were awarded Mrs. Odessa Miller and Mrs. Homer Bergen. Mrs. De Grey Tuft was consoled, while Mrs. Thomas Smith and Mrs. Elwin Gammell won special prizes. Gifts of charming variety then were presented to Mrs. Shugart, the honoree.

During the refreshment interval, tables were appointed in pink and white, with bouquets of pink roses serving as the central figures. Nut cups were of baby carriage design. Ice cream and cake in the chosen colors were served.

HOME GARDENS ARE SETTING FOR AFTERNOON NUPTIALS

One of the season's loveliest wedding ceremonies took place Sunday evening, August 16, at 5 o'clock, when Miss Marion Cynthia Stull, daughter of Mrs. D. J. Stull, and Victor Valley were married in the pretty gardens of the Stull home, 214 South Ross street. Guests were welcomed by Mr. and Mrs. Guy W. Stull, while ushers were Glenn and Maxson Stull, brother and nephew of the bride. Orange trees in the garden provided the background for tall baskets of salmon pink gladioli and blue delphinium before which the ceremony was read by the Rev. O. W. Reinlin, pastor of the Richmond Avenue Methodist church.

Proceeding the ceremony a short vocal recital was given by Mrs. Guy Stull, sister-in-law of the bride, with Mr. Stull at the piano. Her songs were "At Dawning" and "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" by Victor Herbert. As the music changed to Lohengrin's Wedding March, played at the piano by Miss Bessie Campbell of Hollywood, the bride party entered.

Miss Stull was given in marriage by her brother, Guy Stull. She made an attractive bride in her white satin gown fashioned in princess style, and carrying a lovely bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley, whose showers reached almost to her white moire slippers. Her blonde hair was held in place with a band of folded satin and roses and lilies of the valley. She wore a platinum bracelet, the gift of Mr. Valley, and a strand of crystals as the "something borrowed." She carried the handkerchief that her mother carried at her wedding 46 years ago in New York.

Miss Mabel Miller was maid of honor and was gown in flowered chiffon in tones of pink. Her arm bouquet was of orchid sweet peas and maidenhair fern. Glenn Stull attended Mr. Valley as best man.

Following the double-ring ceremony the new Mrs. Valley made the first cut in her pretty wedding cake, and this, with refreshments of bell-shaped ices and little cakes, were served by Mrs. Herman Zimlemann, Mrs. J. S. Campbell and Miss Bertha Wright. Mrs. Valley, the Rev. Mr. Reinlin and the bride's mother, Mrs. D. J. Stull were seated at a table centered with pink rosebuds. Mrs. Stull wore dark blue chiffon with a shoulder corsage of white gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. Valley then left for a honeymoon trip to San Francisco, with Mrs. Valley wearing a smart frock of wood brown flat crepe fashioned with orange and brown scarf necktie. Her hat was an Empress, Eugenia, model in matching tones.

On their return to this city, where Mr. Valley is in business, Mr. and Mrs. Valley will make their home at 1315 South Main street. The bride is a graduate of Santa Ana schools and since receiving her degree from the University of Southern California has been teaching at the Lowell school.

MANHATTAN NIGHT

by William Alton Wolf

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING INSTALLMENTS

"So they've found Evan?" Martha Thayer told Peter Wayne. "Mr. Bouton says he made a statement. But why? Peter? Evan couldn't have told them anything about how Tack was killed. He doesn't know." Peter and Tack Thayer had been college mates at Yale. Tack had been found murdered in their penthouse by Martha, and she and Evan Ross, with whom she was in love, were suspected by Inspector Connolly. Peter had fallen hopelessly in love with Martha following his return to New York. He met Martha for the first time with the drunken Tack in Emma's night club. In dread of arrest, Martha was sheltered in the home of Peter's sister, Carol, Mrs. Steve Wentworth. Detective Sergeant Charley Mitchell didn't share the opinion of his chief, Connolly, and, having his own self-fish ends to serve, had asked Peter to work with him to solve the mystery. Some months earlier, Martha had asked Peter to give a costly bracelet to a man named Evan. Evan, to whom she had promised $500, instead Peter paid the $500, which Martha repaid. Questioning Martha, Peter learned that Tack, while drunk, had lost money in a crap game at Emma's, and that Benny had been blackmailing Martha, who really was fond of her husband, though love was dead.

INSTALLMENT 20

Peter wanted to talk to Charley; he cursed his stupidity when he remembered that he hadn't asked the detective how to reach him. It wouldn't do, he supposed, to call up Headquarters and ask for him. But that problem solved itself; he had hardly gone a block when heavy feet fell into step with his.

"Been doling, eh?" said Charley. "Bouton catch the boss dead?" one of the bottom of the deck? He went in like a lion—but he came out like a lamb with its tail between its legs.

He chuckled at Peter's report. But he didn't know what Ross had said. "Not in on that," he said. "They picked him up, walkin' into his place as cool as you please, about four o'clock. Said he'd been in the country all day, I heard. That may be a lot of boloney, though. Probably is."

He walked along, thoughtfully silent, for half a block.

"Any the madam thinks he was with this red-headed guy? Well, that's an idea, too. We'll have to see. What else did you find out from her?"

Peter told him about the bracelet and Martha's explanation of that episode.

"Benny Rufano, eh? Benny. Now—how's he come to be sittin' in, I wonder?"

"Listen—does a bank teller know a phony ten dollar bill? Don't be foolish. Sure I know him. I know him like you know your school-books. So Benny's started shaking them down, has he? I'll tell you what I didn't know—that that was one of his rackets. That's good dope, Pete. I hand it to you for diggin' that up."

Peter felt distinctly flattered. Pete was a distinct promotion, he felt from fella.

"I don't fit in just yet, but it be- longs, all right," said Charley. "That's what this game is, Pete—gettin' hold of the bits that belong, one after another, and being patient till you have enough of them that fit together so that even twelve boneheads on a jury can't help seeing what it's all about."

"What can I do, Charley?"

"Huh? I don't know, Pete. Not yet. That's the trouble. Hold up a bit. Guess I'll do some 'phonin' and get the low down on Ross, if I can."

They'd turned across from Park Avenue, now, and, walking down Vanderbilt Avenue, Charley was in at the Roosevelt and went to the slot telephones in the long corridor. Peter watched him; marked, with interest, Charley's utterly expressionless face, and the way he spoke without letting his lips move at all.

"They turned him loose, all right," Charley said. "Took him over to the house, and Barclay and the boss worked on him for two-three hours. No line on what he said—they didn't have a stenographer, even. He's been trailed. They're keepin' an eye on the Gould woman, too. How much you know about her, Pete?"

"Not very much," said Peter, reluctantly.

"Ross's girl friend—on the side?"

"I don't know." Then, after a moment, "I think so—yes."

"So do I, Pete, so do I. And I ain't in so strong with her?"

"No. She doesn't like me."

"Too bad. You couldn't get anything out of her, then. How about Ross? Any chance he'd open up to you?"

"I doubt it."

"No. I suppose you and he'd get along like a couple of strange tomatoes. You're too damn simple about your feelings. Pete—that's one of your troubles. All you've got to do to know what you're thinkin' is to look at you. Well—I'll tell you what. You show up at Emma's along about one a. m. If you see me act like you didn't know me—see? But watch me, and for Gawd's sake try and get it if I slip you a sign to do anything."

"What are you driving at?"

"I don't know. Wish I did. I just got a hunch somethin' might break around there. Don't ask me why. I wouldn't tell you if I knew, and I don't know, anyway. All right. S'long."

Peter, disappointed, vaguely, and feeling discouraged, because, though he didn't quite know how, Charley had disappointed him and let him down, went home and dressed. The more he racked his brain the less could he understand the meaning of what he knew, and the farther did he seem to be from fitting the pieces of the puzzle together. Ross—Benny—Connolly, like a hound on the scent—Tack, lying cold and still—Martha, still free, on sufferance, but facing arrest and the prospect of something that would lie like a pall over her whole life, no matter what the outcome, unless the truth about Tack's death could be proved.

She was beset by hatreds, by veiled and open enmities, it seemed to Peter. Connolly was her enemy; impersonally, perhaps, and only because she had presented herself to him as the most available means of adding to his own reputation, but, none the less, her enemy, and a formidable one. Tack's mother hated her already, and was sure now to hold her responsible for Tack's death. Rita Gould was another of her enemies, Ross? He wondered about Ross; wondered if, in some curious and subtle fashion, Ross, too, didn't hate her. Some deep instinct within him warned him against Ross; warned him that Ross was not to be counted among those who were on Martha's side.

Friends she had, to be sure. Himself, and Steve and Carol; Bouton, too—a hired retainer, but a powerful one. Charley, too; by grace of Charley's jealousy of Connolly, and his resentment of the way he had been passed over for promotion. But it didn't matter why Charley was on his side; the fact was all to the good, and he was worth all the rest of Martha's friends put together just now, Peter believed.

He loathed the idea of going to Emma's tonight; of going to any place where he had been wont to see Martha and Tack, any place where gayety and good cheer and laughter prevailed. But he had always been one to obey orders, and he went, doggedly, getting there, as Charley had told him, to soon after one. The bar was almost deserted; people wouldn't begin crowding it for another hour. Zach, the big bartender, was sitting down, not more than half awake, the music from the other room could be heard, faintly, through the half open doors; Emma, just then, was singing her blue songs for the customers who had to pay a cover charge—something not exacted, for some odd reason, from those allowed to use the bar.

Benny, fat and gross and oily, had been lounging opposite the elevator when Peter came up; he glanced at Peter, momentarily, through his half closed eyes, which were like a pig's, but only nodded, indifferently, by way of greeting.

Peter took a stool at the bar and ordered a whiskey sour; he didn't want a drink, but he had to have some excuse for being there.

"That's good stuff, in that drink, Mr. Wayne," Zach said. "We been gettin' pretty good rye lately. Right from Canada, with the government seal. I can get you a case, if you're interested."

"I don't believe I am, Zach," said Peter. "I wouldn't get rid of a case of rye in a year, the way I use it at home."

"You got the right idea, Mr. Wayne. Me—I'm off the stuff. I've tended bar for twenty-five years, and you don't catch me hittin' it. That poor kid that got his last night—why, say, he'd be up and around now if he'd known when to quit."

"What makes you say that, Zach?" asked Peter, only mildly interested in Zach's moralizing.

"Stands to reason, Mr. Wayne. You ever see him sore when he was hit? Wasn't anythin' he wouldn't say—and mighty little he wasn't apt to do. Many's the time I've been ready with my bung starter under the bar here when he was all set to start somethin'. And now the bulls are tryin' to make out that his wife did it!"

"Why do you think that?" said Peter, startled.

"Say, I can tell, Mr. Wayne. Wasn't they drillin' me for two hours here last night? Askin' me did they ever have a fight that I heard—'an' about Mrs. Thayer and this lad Ross? I don't have to read the papers to know what Connolly's after. They've been a dick around here tonight—Charley Mitchell, say—guess you must have seen him. You was over there last night, wasn't you?"

"I may have—it seems to me I saw the whole police department!"

"Ain't it the truth? It takes a dozen of them bulls to turn on the light on a job like that. But they're away off if they think they can hang it on Mrs. Thayer. She'll never do it."

"Oh, of course she didn't!" said Peter.

Rather to his relief, some people he knew came in just then. The bar began to fill up. Dr. Meyer Zahn appeared, he nodded to Peter, who had met him two or three times. As usual, Zahn sat by himself; Emma sat at his table, when she was free, and they talked, in low tones. There was still no sign of Charley, and Peter grew more and more restless and impatient. He felt Zach's eyes upon him, two or three times, once or twice, when he looked around, he caught Zahn looking at him. And at last, when Peter happened to have been left alone at his table, Zahn got up and came over.

"May I have a word with you, Mr. Wayne?" he said, in his soft voice—which had, though, for all its suave and calculated smoothness, a curiously hard note deep buried within it. "Will you come over and join me in a drink? They have some old brandy here that most of you don't know about, I think."

Peter, distinctly surprised, a little flattered, too, for that matter, accepted, and rose. The brandy appeared, and Peter, though he was no connoisseur, knew that it was not speaking stuff.

"I have been shocked by this murder—young Thayer's killing last night," said Zahn. "I understand that you were there soon afterward. I have tried to reach Mrs. Thayer today. She has, as I suppose you know, been a patient of mine for a year or so. Can you tell me how she is?"

"I think she's as well as you could expect," said Peter. "It was a frightful shock, of course."

"Naturally. She is with your sister, is not that, Mr. Wayne?"

Peter stared, and Zahn laughed, in his curiously merciless fashion. (To Be Continued)

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

THAT GLASS PLATTER

Some weeks ago I mentioned "a new glass platter," which I am using successfully for broiling. That little item evidently was not quite clear, because a number of letters have come to me asking what this "new" platter might be, where it could be bought, and so on.

The platter I am using is new only in terms of possession. It is a heat-proof glass utensil. It can be bought in any kitchenware department for $1.25.

Now, a word of caution in using these platters. I am told that some dealers do not advise their use in broiling, but my experience so far has proved that they are ideally adapted for broiling. If ordinary precautions are taken. This is my way of doing:

The oven is turned on half strength, the platter well rubbed with cold butter and placed in the warm oven for a few minutes. The food to be broiled (fish or chops) is quickly browned in a hot frying pan, transferred to the platter, the heat turned on full until the surface is well seared, then comes the turning of the food and my first precaution.

See that no open windows or drafts are blowing directly against the oven door, open the broiling oven half a minute before drawing out the platter to turn the food. It is sharp changes in temperature which breaks these heat-proof utensils.

The following recipe demonstrates how easily a mixed grill can be broiled and served on the same dish:

TODAY'S RECIPE

Mixed Grill With Broiled Tomatoes
1/2 pound tiny link sausage
2 thick loin lamb chops
2 slices calves' liver
2 large tomatoes

1 tablespoon mixed chopped green pepper and green onion
1 tablespoon chopped parsley for garnish

1 tablespoon butter
Salt and pepper

Have the calves' liver slices cut about two-thirds of an inch thick. Scald them, drain and roll in flour. Skin the chops and quickly sear both chops and liver in a hot skillet lightly buttered.

Turn on the oven full strength, spread the glass broiling platter liberally with cold butter and set thereon the two tomatoes, unskinned, but cut in halves and garnished with pepper and onion. Nest the little sausage around the tomatoes and in the center of the platter arrange the two thick chops and slices of liver. Season nicely and slip under the broiling flame.

Take a quick peek and when the surface of the meats is sizzling nicely, open the door for a few moments, draw out the broiling grid and quickly turn the meats, slip back and sear the turned side quickly, then take another peek, and, if everything looks rosy, turn down the heat, so that there is no danger of scorching, and broil until the chops are the way you like them. The chopped parsley is added just before the grill goes to the table.

Squab, chicken, fish fillets, filet mignon are all broiled to perfection on this good-looking glass platter.

The individual calorie total for each of the two portions of the mixed grill amount to 600. Much of this total is charged up to the little sausage, so let your choice of vegetables and dessert be low in fat units.

The J. R. Shelton house on Manzanita street is now occupied by J. R. Shelton's son.

"SILENCE" AT WEST COAST STARS BROOK

Clive Brook gives one of his best screen personations in "Silence," which opened at the Fox Broadway theater yesterday to show for three days.

The story of a man, rejected in love, who years later is willing to sacrifice his life because of his love for his daughter, the story has a dramatic appeal of unusual quality, while Brook, usually seen as the well-dressed, suave gentleman, is seen in an entirely different role, that of a petty thief and a bum.

The difference is appalling and yet it makes the audience realize the vast emotional powers of the man, and his friends will be multiplied after seeing him in "Silence."

Marjorie Rambeau has one of the leading roles in the picture, that of a woman saloon keeper. Peggy Shannon is the girl in the story with whom Brook falls in love and Charles Starrett also has an important part.

Murder, a confession, and then sealed lips—lips that refuse to talk about the gallows stare him in the face. It is that type of picture. Its appeal is so powerful that the audience is likely to cheer or cry at any time.

TALBERT

TALBERT, Aug. 17.—Miss Alice Herbert of Williams Lake, British Columbia, has been the guest for several days of the Rev. and Mrs. O. E. Laird, Miss Herbert is spending the summer with a sister in Bellefour.

Way and son, Teddy, of Kettleman Hills, who have been with other relatives in Long Beach for a week, came here to spend the remainder of their vacation.

Mrs. Pearl Eggon, cousin of Mrs. Hattie Talbert, and Mrs. Dora Rogers, who has been visiting here from the north, left Saturday for Los Angeles.

Mrs. Ella Shafer, sister of Mrs. J. H. Cox, who has spent the past five months in the Cox home, moved to Santa Monica Wednesday to make her home. Before the departure of Mrs. Shafer a family reunion was held. Present were a son of Mrs. Cox, Walter Crist, and wife of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Edmunds and daughter of Inglewood, Mr. and Mrs. Davis, Jr., and Mrs. Davis, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. La Rue of Pasadena; Mr. and Mrs. Waggoner, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cox, from Paulino. Oliver Cox, who is of the crew of the airplane carrier Saratoga, also spent the week end at home.

Mrs. Harold Swift and son, Milton Swift, of Huntington Beach, were Tuesday visitors in the home of Mrs. Harvey Warner.

Mrs. Harvey Warner visited Monday with Mrs. Lee Jennings and Mrs. J. H. Cox.

Mrs. Ernest Ross, whose death occurred this week at the county hospital, following a lingering illness, was a former resident of Talbert. The family has resided at Santa Ana Gardens for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Giesler and twin daughters accompanied their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hamrol of San Francisco, to their home Saturday.

Mrs. Frank Alair of Santa Ana spent Wednesday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Giesler.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harper and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Giesler and father, Samuel Giesler, of Santa Ana, formed a party Sunday to the warships in Los Angeles harbor and went aboard the U. S. S. Colorado.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Farnsworth, who returned a week ago from their wedding trip, have been the honor guests at two surprise affairs sponsored during the week by friends and relatives. On Saturday evening a group of their young friends gave them a rousing charivari and spent the evening in their home, which is the ranch house on the place of the groom's father, Reuben Farnsworth of Santa Ana, with whom he is engaged in partner in ranching operations on an extensive scale.

Tuesday evening relatives of the young couple gave a surprise for them, about 30 attending, and in this group were several who attended the charivari of Mr. Farnsworth's parents 25 years ago at the same house. Among these were Charles Grislet, Steve Grislet, Mrs. Pearl Walker Planchon, Mrs. Vera Winn Lawrence, Ed Farnsworth, Mr. and Mrs. John Farnsworth and the honoree of that party a quarter of a century ago, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Farnsworth. The arrival of the unexpected guests was announced by a bugle call given by the bride's brother, Billy Hannaford. Lovely gifts were presented Mr. and Mrs. Farnsworth and delicious refreshments of cake and punch, brought by the self-invited guests, were served at the conclusion of the pleasant evening.

'HUCKLEBERRY FINN' PLEASURES B'WAY HOUSE

'Transatlantic' Soon Due At Fox Br'dwa

Another rollicking, heart-warming juvenile comedy-drama, the third from the Paramount studio this year, is now starring at the Fox Broadway theater. It is the famous Mark Twain story, "Huckleberry Finn," with Jackie Coogan, Mitzi Green, Junior Durkin and Jackie Searl in the featured cast.

"Huckleberry Finn" is the further adventures of the lovable youngsters who won favor from screen fans of all ages in "Tom Sawyer." Junior Durkin, as Huck, runs away from home, in fear of his angry father. His father follows him, takes him to a deserted cabin, but Huck is rescued by Tom, and, together, the boys decide to embark on a life of adventure. The story tells how they save two young sisters from a pair of roving desperadoes, at great danger to themselves. This adventure brings them great satisfaction and honor.

In the cast of adults are two well-known character players, in addition to the talented actors who continue in the roles they portrayed in "Tom Sawyer." Eugene Pallette and Oscar Apfel give a humorous interpretation of the two desperadoes, Clara Blandick is seen as Tom Sawyer's Aunt Polly and Jane Darwell continues in the role of the good-hearted Widow Douglas.

More than 200 children were used in the production, a larger number than found employment in either "Tom Sawyer" or "Skippy."

WHAT KIND OF LOVE SEALED HIS LIPS THAT EVEN THE GALLOWS COULD NOT MAKE HIM BREAK HIS SILENCE?

Laughter, droll situations and love-making in delightful madcap fashion characterize Mary Pickford's version of "Kiki," which opened yesterday at Walker's State theater.

The swift comedy-drama shows Mary in a role of the inimitable type that first won her the title of "America's Sweetheart."

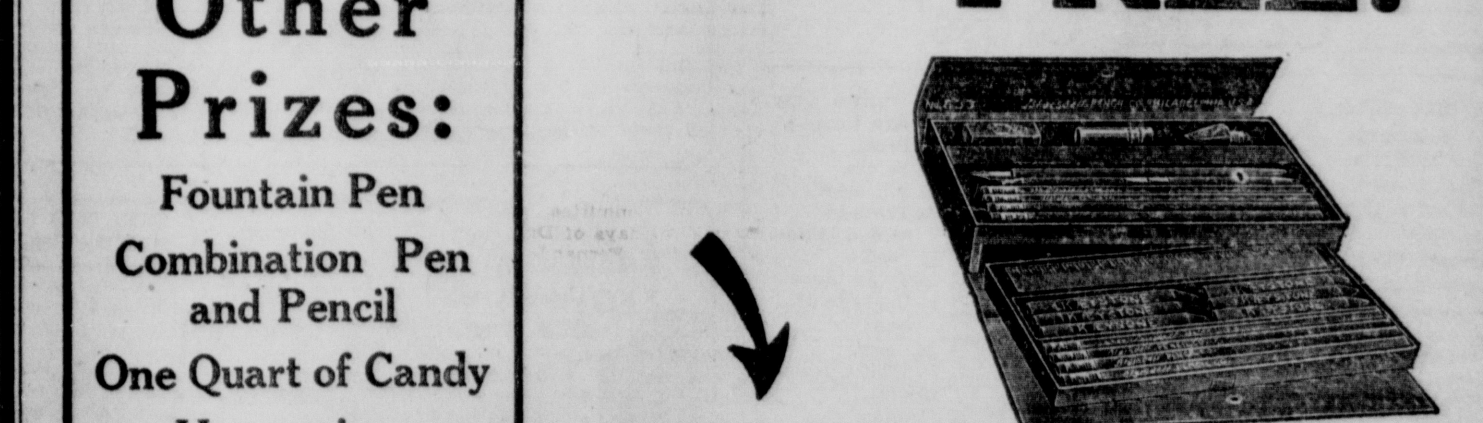

As a harum-scarum girl in love with a handsome, divorced man, portrayed by Reginald Denny, Miss Pickford wildly tackles every obstacle that stands in her way, particularly the ex-wife, played by Margaret Livingston, who is trying with all her wiles to get him back.

Miss Pickford has created a "Kiki" who constantly wins the sympathy of the audience and keeps it through rollicking moments and occasional touches of pathos.

THE TINYMITES
STORY BY HAL COCHRAN — PICTURES BY KNICK
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

The big sea lion raised its head. "Look out there, Coppy," Scouty said. "The mother may not like the way you put her baby. Gee! I think we'd better keep away. Perhaps it's dumb to try to play with any old sea lions. You can do it. Not for me."

The Tinymites then laughed and cried. "The patting stunt I've often tried and there is naught to worry you. Sea lions do not mind. They'll stay still while you have fun. Then flap their fins when patting's done. As long as you are friendly, they won't harm you, you will find."

The Tinymites found that he was right and it was quite a thrilling sight to watch all of the Tinymites as they gaily played around. The sea lion crawled about and made the whole bunch laugh and shout. It wiggled very queerly, as it traveled over the ground.

Soon Clowny said, "Oh, gee, I wish I had a real nice pan of fish to feed this little fellow. He has earned a tasty lunch." "All right," replied the Travel Man. "I'll get some small fish if I can." And that is what he shortly did. It was a happy lunch.

Soon Clowny said, "I think I will roam about a bit and try to find some interesting things. I'll call you if I do." He walked what would be about a block and then he spied a great big rock. Beneath it sat two great big birds with monstrous ruffled wings.

Of course Clowny called the Travel Man and said, "Please tell me, if you can, what kind of birds these fellows are. They're very strange to me." "They're man-of-war birds," he replied. "Beneath that rock they're trying to hide. Be careful if you go up close. They might bite you, you see."

A LETTER FOR YOUR HIGHNESS
A LETTER..... FOR ME??

Mister X
This is to tell you goodbye. I am running away because I can't trust myself to stay — and what you ask could never be. I am thinking of you, about you all. I can't let you give up the throne.

and all that it means to you, just for me. I could never forgive myself if I did. You will thank me — some day. It isn't easy to say this, Mister X. Perhaps that is why I am writing, instead of telling you — I would be afraid. When you read this, I will be gone. Please, don't try to find me.

It is the only way. You have made me, oh so happy — and, so sad. Goodbye, Mister X. I will remember you always — Goodbye!

THREE LOOT GAS STATIONS IN BEACH CITY

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 17.—Service station thieves ran rampant over the city last night, breaking into the C. D. Tipton station at Twenty-third street and Coast highway and the Kerr service station at Fifth and Olive, a block away from the police station. C. F. Kerr saw two men robbing his service station after daylight this morning.

Kerr lives next door to his service station. When he saw the thieves he quietly left through his back door and raced across the block to police headquarters, where he reported the burglars at work. The police went to the Kerr service station, but by the time they arrived the burglars had completed their work and left.

Officers detailed to investigate other service stations in the city found out that the Tipton service station on the Coast highway had been burglarized. Tipton was aroused and fixed the time of the robbery at his station at probably between 4 and 5 o'clock.

The police phoned Long Beach and the police of Long Beach reported the arrest of two men when answering the description of the robbers given by Mr. Kerr. The two men had in their possession when arrested nothing but an electric clock, which Kerr reported had been stolen from his service station. It is presumed the thieves either hid their loot or left it with some "fence."

At the Kerr station $4 in cash, seven tires, a number of tubes, flashlights and other accessories were taken.

Mr. Tipton reported stolen from his station an adding machine, small auto accessories, tires and tubes, in all about $150 worth of articles. The burglars had broken locks to gain entrance at each place.

Policemen Rubideaux and Parker went to Long Beach this morning to confirm the report received that the Long Beach police had arrested the burglars.

CIVIC CENTER PROPOSED FOR NEWPORT SITE

NEWPORT BEACH, Aug. 17.—While thus far it has only been discussed informally by city officials and prominent citizens, it is expected that official action will be taken in the near future toward creating a civic center for Newport Beach at the site of the present municipal campground. Here, beside the bay, the city owns a level tract of ground several acres in extent, and a block or so away from the ocean.

Mayor Johnson, when questioned about the proposed project for a civic center, said: "That is something to be acted on in the future. It is not contemplated that this project will be undertaken at this time."

There is ample room on the proposed site for a large municipal building or buildings to house the city government in all its departments, an auditorium of large dimensions and such other buildings as are sadly needed at this time. Those urging the civic center point out that the modern city should take the lead in providing the very best civic buildings within reach of the city's finances.

Those urging an early promotion of the civic center building idea point out that this time will be a good time to begin the work. Building construction is possible at the lowest cost in years.

McWhinney, one of the owners of Central Memorial park, and his son, John, 15, were victims of a bad automobile wreck a few days ago while en route to Loveland, Colo., where they have ranching interests. They came by Midway City as they left on their trip, visiting with the superintendent of the park, Charles Whitte, and had reached Seligman, Ariz., when, driving at night on a rough road, the lights did not function properly, making Mr. McWhinney miss a turn. The car went into soft dirt at the roadside, overturning. John was thrown against a rock and badly injured, two breaks in the vertebrae being revealed by X-ray pictures later. Mr. McWhinney secured a compartment, bringing the injured boy to Los Angeles, and en route back to Los Angeles had a 12-hour delay on account of washouts on the railroad, caused by the storm. John will be in a cast six weeks, then encased in a steel brace for a longer time.

Joe Ross of Martinez, Calif., is visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Shirley while at Wilmington on a two weeks' vacation.

PERFECTION IS DISCUSSED AT UNION SERVICE

ANAHEIM, Aug. 17.—Using "Christian Perfection" as the subject of his sermon, the Rev. J. A. Watson, pastor of the Free Methodist church, last night addressed a large congregation in the Greek amphitheater of the Anaheim city park in the sixth of the series of union church services held in the park. The theme of the sermon was taken from St. Matthew.

The text shows that man is not given absolute perfection, he declared, as this belongs to God only. "In the second place," the Rev. Watson declared, "man is not entitled to angelic perfection, for if the Lord had wanted us to be angels we would have created us so. In the third place, man is not entitled to Adam's perfection, the perfection that was enjoyed before he fell, for Adam was perfect before he fell. Perfect physically, morally, spiritually and in all manners."

"God was designed to move in a realm or sphere which belongs to him only; angels were designed to move in the realm that belongs to them only; man, when he came to the hands of the Creator, was designed to move in that particular sphere that belongs to him. Now, after the fall of man, it is impossible to measure up to the design of God or move in the realm man was originally destined to move in."

"Man has fallen below the standards of perfection that were set before the fall. Through the atonement man will be able to move in the sphere that is rightfully his, and he will be a perfect Christian."

The Rev. Mr. Watson showed how man can attain Christianity in the fullest sense of the word by following the example set by Christ.

Sacred music was furnished by congregational singing. Two special numbers were rendered by the young people's choir of the Free Methodist church under the direction of Paul Beatty.

"CONGRESS SHIES AT SHADOWS"

Representative George Holden Tinkham, writing in "Nation's Business," says that under the pressure of special groups and sectional influences, congress passes a great many measures that are not for the best interests of the American people. He feels that representatives in Congress are moved altogether too much by the psychology of the crowd. They lose their individuality in the clamor of the crowd. Organized minorities employ able lobbyists who say to the member of Congress, "I represent so many votes, and unless you vote for this measure you lose them, and consequently you lose your job." It has been said that the only element in our population which has no one to press its claims before Congress is the people themselves. Individually, the representative may want to do what is best for the whole people, but under pressure he surrenders his best self, and he becomes merely an echo of a special group. It was once said of a group of individuals who were serving as the selectmen of a New England town, that individually they were gentlemen, but collectively they were scoundrels.

This is nothing new, and Representative Tinkham is wise enough to prescribe no remedy. But he believes that calling attention to this situation may not be without some good results. He does say that the great vice of American politics is cowardice. What is needed in American politics is more courage. He believes that if we can banish unnecessary fear from the minds of our public men, curb political coercion, set lobbyists in their proper places, eliminate meddling ecclesiastical politicians, Congress may avoid some of the criticism which has been hurled at it. Otherwise, it will continue to be a mere mechanism to record the wishes of the most noisy and the most coercive minorities.

We have often been told that we get just as good government as we deserve. If the majority of our citizens want to be ruled by minorities that is their business. The fact is, the cause lies much deeper. We have too much devotion to parties and shibboleths in political life. Party too often goes ahead of principle. There are too many of us who are ready to condone any kind of an evil if we can get our way with reference to some unimportant issue. We must remember that the great mass of our people are not politically minded, and as Harold Laski recently pointed out, it is only the political minded who count in a democracy, not majorities.

with it. Police expect him to come clean. In the German financial situation France, it seems, will give in till it hurts.

A CRIMELESS CITY

The Wickersham Commission, in its report on Crime in our Large Cities, cites Milwaukee as the city practically without crime. This is high praise. In fact, there have been a series of articles running in many of our metropolitan papers in recent weeks on the fine conditions, from a crime point of view, in the city of Milwaukee. Probably no praise would be more gratifying to a city than the report of this Wickersham Commission, which has been making comparisons with other cities. It certainly is a greater compliment to Milwaukee than what used to be flashed everywhere concerning the "beer that made Milwaukee famous."

We wonder how this has come about in Milwaukee. Is it the higher virtue of the people in that city? Is it because the police have been more vigilant in preventing or detecting crime? And if so, what is the reason? Of course, everyone knows that Milwaukee has had but one mayor in 16 years, and that he is a Socialist. It was also the home of Victor Berger, whose paper has been a great force in the city for many years, and Victor Berger was a Socialist.

We have been wondering as we have read the articles on Milwaukee as a city being held up as the model for crimelessness, if people generally understand that Milwaukee is a city under the Socialist party control. We are not Socialists. There are some fundamental things in Socialism, for example, its tyranny, that we are constitutionally opposed to, but there seems to be something in its control that eliminates racketeering and crime. If Socialism can clean up Chicago, Philadelphia and New York, yes, and Los Angeles, too, we would like to see it in control in those cities.

THE PENALTY OF SERVING THE PUBLIC

The Kansas City Star, the most influential newspaper in the Southwest, finds itself the defendant in a libel suit for $12,000,000 filed against it by the head of the Cities' Service company because it has exposed the methods of that company in exacting high rates from the people of Kansas City. Of course, it does not expect to win the suit. It is simply one of the ways which men of large interests have of worrying those who stand in their way.

And now the report comes that the head of this company has bought a half interest in the Kansas City Journal-Post for the purpose of having a voice to speak in his defense, and incidentally to furnish more lively competition for the Star. This has always been a favorite method to silence the voice that speaks for the people. But it has rarely worked.

The Star has not retreated one inch from its position. Denying that it was interested in a competing gas company, which has been the charge made against it, the editor says, "The Star is interested in one thing that Mr. Doherty will not discuss. That is the price of gas and the proper regulation of an unregulated monopoly." With reference to the purchase of a half interest in a rival newspaper, the editor says, "This is a favorite method resorted to by interests fighting for special privileges. But there will be no let up in the Star's fight for reduction of excessive rates."

Not all newspapers are so bold and so persistent in their fight for the public interest. Sometimes it is a thankless task, for not infrequently the public will not stand by those who are fighting for them. But it has been known that those who stand for the public interests in such matters generally have the support of the public. Sometimes, to be sure, the power of special privilege is greater than that of the public. But in this case, we have no doubt who the victor will be.

The Kansas City Star has a long and honorable history. Its founder, William Rockhill Nelson, once said that he always meant to be kind and charitable, but that he never accomplished much by kicking in his stocking feet. Evidently, his successors in the management of the paper have the same spirit as the founder. At any rate it will be interesting to follow the fight now on.

There ought to be no retirement age for General Prosperity.

UNEMPLOYMENT

"The ranks of the unemployed yield more material in proportion to their numbers for penal institutions than do the ranks of the employed," according to Miss Mary Van Kleeck, of the Russell Sage Foundation who has studied the records of Sing Sing prison for ten years. Miss Van Kleeck's finding is a part of the Wickersham report on the causes of crime. The psychologist can enlarge upon the reason for this fact. President Hoover will do well to bear it in mind as he contemplates the winter.

A sensitive and much loved divine of England who has now passed on, used to emphasize that people are always looking for a simple solution for their problems. Hence they are always being disappointed. He found, in their search for the easy formula, infinite paths. The viewpoint has considerable bearing on the Wickersham report. It has been a disappointment to all those who hoped for and expected the Wickersham commission to make definite recommendations for sure relief.

It follows, therefore, that such a statement as this from Miss Van Kleeck is more apt than not to receive far less emphasis than it deserves. With the weight of ten years of investigation and the Wickersham commission back of it, it should command attention. However, committed to the high-sounding theory that individual initiative should not be discouraged by government, the effect of unemployment on the individual is a fact which commands attention from the angle of self-preservation even if, by some horrible misfortune, one is without social and humanitarian instincts.

Schools in Finland Also Have Their Troubles

San Bernardino Sun

Boys and girls start to school at seven in Finland. These small people go for two years either to summer or winter schools, depending on where they live, and they are then admitted to the four-year course of compulsory education. This would bring them to about the end of our fifth or sixth grade. Then they enter what is called a college, the first five years of which are like our high school. This brings them through our tenth grade. The other four years are like the end of our high school with two years of one of our junior colleges.

The Finnish minister of education is planning to send several of his best educators to America soon to study our methods of training. This is reasonable, for we have many good ideas especially in the way of primary and intermediate teaching. But there are two things the minister of education has especially in mind which he hopes, strangely to us, to have his educators learn in America. Many Finnish students leave school, he says, at that point which is like the end of our sophomore year in high school. He continues:

"They have a good general education, still they are not fitted to earn a living. Here we hope to remedy this by adopting some American ideas."

"Another actual problem is how to educate the working classes so they will know how profitably to use their free time. At present we have an eight-hour working day, but before many years have passed the perfection of machinery will reduce the working day still more." If the educators from Finland can learn from us how to fit boys and girls to make a living, and having learned that, how to use their leisure to their own and society's advantage, instead of to everybody's detriment, we hope that they will give us the secret. They are two things we have not yet learned, and wish we might.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

A SINGING STREAM

I like to hear the billows roar
And watch them cream and foam,
But never on the ocean shore
I'd care to have my home;
I like to watch the ebbing tide
When all the beaches gleam
But I would rather, far, abide
Beside a singing stream.

A little more than rivulet,
A little less than river
Within a shaded valley set
Where aspens bend and quiver
Where water spiders leave their trails
On pools as still as glass
And leaves, like boats with colored sails,
Nod gaily as they pass.

I'd like to have a little house
In some rock-bordered glen
Where I might hear a flock of grouse
Whirr past me now and then;
Afar from sound of horn or wheel
My days I'd like to spend
Where I might watch the glossy teal
Swim slowly round the bend.

And though the nights were short or long
From dusk to break of day
I'd love to hear the water's song
As forth it took its way,
So, while my hopes may not come true,
I love to lie and dream
That I may live my old age through
Beside a singing stream.

What Stalled the Engine?

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER
and WADDILL CATCHINGS

An Englishman in Asia returned to his parked automobile just in time to find a lot of black men hammering the car with cudgels. A native potentate had tried to ride in it, but the car would not go; so he ordered his servants to "pound the devil out of it."

Such superstition seems to you absurd. When you cannot start your engine, you do not try to drive out evil spirits. You hunt for some other cause of the trouble. Are the batteries dead? Is the gasoline tank empty? Is there water in the carburetor? Is there a short-circuit?

You know that you cannot CURE the trouble until you find the CAUSE of the trouble.

Today industry is unable to start a large part of its economic machinery. What is the cause of the trouble?

Some say that there is too much wheat, rubber, coffee, leather, oil—too much of nearly everything. Those who hold this view insist that we cannot start our idle machines until we use up the world surplus of goods.

Many other men hold precisely the opposite view. The cause of the trouble, they insist, is our extravagance. We have consumed too much. We have wasted our substance in the buying of luxuries. In short, we have tried to maintain too high a standard of living.

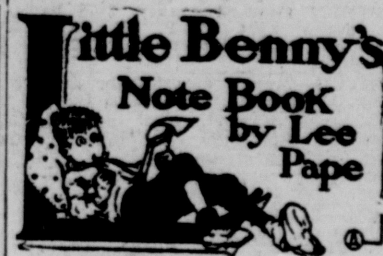

Still other men maintain that our engines have been stalled by unbalanced production. That is to say, we have produced relatively too much of certain goods.

Is that the cause, or is it the failure of the flow of money to keep pace with the flow of goods?

Or shall we find the true explanation in one or more of the 231 other theories of business cycles which a laborious German scholar has tabulated?

In any event, there is little hope of starting a stalled engine until we find out why it is stalled. The rest of the week, we shall discuss the question, What has stalled so much of our industrial machinery?

One of which bathroom rugs? pop sed, and ma sed, One of those that are advertised by Hookbinders, one of the thick ones that feel so nice when you step out of the tub.

Well, a bathroom rug isent so bad, pop sed. It gives a poor man the sensation of being a rich man as his dripping foot sinks into its soft dry luxurious thickness, and at the same time it makes the rich man feel even richer, thus promoting good feeling between the classes. Stepping from our porcelain tub onto our fleecy bath rug, what giant strides we have taken since the days our savage ancestors stepped from their rocky river bed onto the goopy mudbank. If I were a grate poet I believe I would write a grate poem on the subject of bathroom rugs, pop sed.

They're really quite reasonable considering that each one is hand made on a hand loom by special hand workers, ma sed. Otherwise I mite consider 22 dollars and 50 cents quite a far fetched price, she sed, and pop sed, How much? For how many?

For one, of course, ma sed. In other words, each, ma sed. Meaning a piece, and pop sed, Yee gods. Now that I come to think of it, a bathroom rug can be turned over the same as anything else. In other words it has its reverse side. Is it fair to the honest workmen who lovingly gave of their best to lay our bathroom tiles, is it fair to them, I say, to cover the gleaming fruit of their efforts with a rug? Furthermore, why should I be robbed of the virile feeling which comes to me when I step down from my plunge onto the smooth invigorating tiles? Why should I make a mollycoddle of my son by robbing him of the same manly privilege? he sed.

Willum Potts you're just tawking through your empty lat to fill up vacant time, and im going to get that rug, ma sed. Wich she properly will.

Uncommon Sense

BY JOHN BLAKE

FUN OF THE JOB

I know of no really successful man who does not enjoy his work. He may complain about it, and pretend to wish that he had taken up some other work. But once he is at work, nothing can distract him.

The thing that will shut out thoughts of everything else, is the thing we get the most fun out of, and in which we have the best chance of succeeding.

Emerson says: "The reward of a thing well done is to have done it."

You can testify yourself to the truth of this. Never have you done a good piece of work you did not think about afterward with pleasure.

The artist will stand long over his easel if upon it is a picture which has cost him long and hard labor.

I have seen a child who had just finished a sand house stand and regard it with a pleased smile, and then go back and bring his mother so that she could see what a skilled constructor he had become.

.... If the work you are doing is so distasteful to you that you get no enjoyment out of it at all, you had better change your job, even if you have to start all over again and for less money.

Yesterday I sat in the locker room of a golf club and listened to four men all of whom had just played the best game of their lives.

They were going over it, shot by shot, congratulating themselves and each other on their accomplishments.

The conversation was pretty dreary to me, being an indifferent player, but, at the moment, it was the most absorbing topic on earth to them.

It is good to be able to make money at your vocation—but if you do not get a deep satisfaction out of the way you are doing it, you miss much of the enjoyment that you should derive from it.

I don't mind a man's bragging a little now and then about his accomplishments.

It shows that he enjoys his work, whatever it may be, and because he enjoys it he will continue to try to do it better and better.

.... Nobody is really happy without work to do.

And happier than any one else is he who has work for which he will abandon everything else.

For as Emerson says: "The rewards of doing a thing well is to have done it."

There may be other rewards for work well done, but none of them are quite as satisfactory as the successful accomplishment of something difficult.

Pick the kind of a job that you like, if you can.

That is the first step toward success, whether it be artistic or financial success.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI
HOME IS BEST

The best place for a baby is at home. The mountains invite and the sea calls, but unless you have your own home among the hills or by the shore, keep where you are with the baby.

A change is hard on a baby usually. When you are in a strange house it is not possible always to get what the baby has been accustomed to having. The supply of hot water is limited; the time for cooking the cereal is not always available. The milk is not the same quality and its contents vary from what the child has been taking. The water is different. The strange noises, the strange faces, the strange environment shock the baby and he needs to avoid that kind of thing.

If the other children can go away for the summer that is fine. It helps them to adjust themselves to other people and other circumstances. It is part of their training. Their absence will relieve the mother of a big share of her burden. That is one of the things that real aunts and uncles can do for their young relatives. A month or two with auntie or randmother helps all around. But the baby ought to be at home, if possible with his mother.

Excursions do a baby no good. Long train rides, long trips in a motor car, are not what he needs. The jolting, the fast moving things all about him are likely to make him ill. His digestion is disturbed and no sensible person wants to have that happen in the summertime. Anytime, is a bad time to take a baby on a long journey. That is to be avoided whenever possible. When it has to be done then we carry the child's food along with us using thermos bottles and a baby's refrigerator.

When the baby is taken to the country great care should be taken to screen him from flies and insects. Flies are likely to carry that which he does not want and insects are likely to bite him. It is true that the ordinary mosquito bite is not dangerous but it is something that a baby can well do without. His skin is tender and his system is susceptible to conditions that would not disturb an adult. Screen him while he sleeps in his carriage, in his bed, or in the hammock. An ounce of prevention in the form of a bit of netting is well worth all it costs.

Keep the direct rays of the sun off him while he sleeps. Keep him cool. He does not need a lot of clothes on a hot day. Let the air get to him. If he is well screened he can lie in safety in his scanty undergarments. It is not right to allow a baby to sweat under a blanket during the hot hours of the midday when he is taking his nap.

Give the baby plenty of cool water. Of course you know it is pure water before you let him have it. If he is not well be sure to boil and then cool the water he drinks. Often a baby cries because he is thirsty. Offer him cool water to make sure.

All these little things are important to the health of the baby. They are likely to disturb the routine of a household unless it has been planned for his comfort. Home is the only place that is planned for the baby so it is best to keep him there. Unless you can move his home don't move the baby.

DISCLOSE SECRET PACT

On August 17, 1917, a white book establishing that there existed an agreement between the Athens government and the central powers was distributed to the deputies of the French chamber.

Documents were contained in the book relating to the Germano-Bulgarian incursion into eastern Macedonia. These documents showed a letter from Count von Mirbach, German minister, to M. Skouloudis, Greek premier, stating that in view of the allies' troops movements the Germano-Bulgars were compelled to enter Greek territory to insure free transit through Rupel pass. The count declared this was purely military necessity.

When M. Skouloudis protested to the entente powers it was charged he did this to deceive them and that he misrepresented

HE'S SAFE

A woman engaged a new maid, who answered the door one afternoon. A man stood on the doorstep and asked if her mistress was at home.

"Yes, sir," replied the maid: "come right in."

"But," stammered the visitor, "perhaps she's engaged."

"Oh, she's engaged all right, but he's out of town for a week, so you needn't be afraid."—Tit-Bits.

SHE DOESN'T MIND

"Your Otto had a fight with my Jack."

"Oh, well, boys must be boys."

"I'm glad you take it like that—I'll get the ambulance to bring your Otto home."—Das Kleine Witzblatt, Leipzig.
